ANNUAL ASTERS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

"Probably these are second only in popularity to the Antirrhinum for the making of a gay bed, judging by what we have seen in our suburban gardens, both being now readily obtained from our seedsmen, while Asters are very amenable to dibble transplanting, though none will grudge a little preparation of the bed for their reception. That Asters like manure goes without saying, but that it can be overdone we found evident in the sudden and mysterious collapse of the elegant Ostrich Plume varieties before their climax of beauty, but not so when a sprinkling only of bone-meal was mixed in the soil. Of the single Asters for cut flower use we cannot speak too highly. Well water the bed a few hours previous to planting.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

TELEPHONE WIRES CUT.

HOW A THIEF MADE HIS ESCAPE.

(BEFORE MR. LITTLE.)

John Henry, alias Howard (24), of no fixed residence or occupation, was remanded in custody on a charge of breaking and entering Brighton Lodge, Sydney parade, the residence of Mr. Thomas McIntyre, and stealing therefrom a handbag, the property of Miss Dympna McIntyre, which contained £8 10s. in notes, and 7s. 6d. in silver.

Evidence was given that, when the prisoner was arrested in Bride street, he said that he knew absolutely nothing about the charge. On a search being made, a 10s. note and three half-crowns were found in his trousers pocket. In a coat which he was wearing there were found a table knife with the top broken, five Irish £1 notes, and three Bank of England notes. When asked to account for them, prisoner said: "I refuse to tell you anything." Asked to account for the knife, he said: "In this case I will say nothing until I see a solicitor."

Miss McIntyre told the Court that, having secured the doors and windows on the 27th inst., she retired to bed at about 12.30 a.m., leaving her handbag on a table beside her bed. At about 4.30 she was called by her sister, and when they went down stairs they found all the doors and the landing window open. On looking through a window she saw the accused man in the garden. She went to telephone for the police, but could not do so, as the wires had been cut. At 7.30 o'clock she went to the garden and found her handbag, which cost £2 10s., cut open. Its contents were missing. The bag had contained five Irish notes, three Bank of England notes, a 10s. note, and some silver.

ROOFTOP CHASE.

A FORMER EMPLOYEE CHARGED.

John Hayden, labourer, Bowe lane, James's street, W., was charged on remand with breaking and entering the public house, 1 and 2 Crumlin road, the property of Thomas Mangan. He was further charged with maliciously breaking a pane of glass in the premises, and a door leading to the smoke-room.

Evidence had been given by Guard O'Regan, Crumlin, that, when on cycling patrol in the vicinity of Crumlin road at about 1.30 a.m. on the 22nd inst., he heard a noise, and, on investigation, saw broken glass lying on the footpath outside the licensed premises. Then he noticed that a window on the second story was broken. Joined by Guard Herbert (166E), who lived close by, he procured a ladder and got in through the window. They went to the top of the house, and out on the roof. After a brief search, they located a man, who made off, saying: "It is you or me for it now."

The Guards gave chase over the roofs of two or three houses, and finally got the man lying in a channel between two roofs. They took him to Terenure Station.

Evidence was given yesterday to the effect that the defendant had worked in the licensed premises as a porter, and left of his own accord.

The defendant was discharged under the Probation Act on the charge of breaking and entering. Malicious damage, however, was proved, and he was fined 5s., and ordered to pay 20s. compensation to Thomas Mangan. He was given 21 days to pay, or 14 days' imprisonment in default.

INFORMATIONS REFUSED.

Informations were refused in a case against James Doyle, building contracter, Carlingford Lodge, Glasnevin, who was charged with the larceny of workmen's tools, value £2, the property of the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company. A similar ruling was made in respect of charges of receiving the tools, while a charge of illegal possession was dismissed.

Mr. P. A. Burke, solicitor, appeared for defendant.

LUCAN COMPANY'S CAPITAL.

REDUCTION APPROVED.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

Mr. Hamill, with whom was Mr. Dickie, K.C. (instructed by Mr. H. J. W. Downing), applied on behalf of Messrs. Hill and Sons, Ltd., manufacturers of woollen goods, Lucan, for an order approving the proposed reduction of the capital of £80,000, divided into 7,000 5 per cent. cumulative preference shares of £5 each and 9,000 ordinary shares of £5 each, by paying back to the shareholders £3 in respect of each of 6,400 issued preference shares and £2 in respect of each of 8,000 ordinary shares, and for approval of the subdivision of the reduced capital into 14,000 preference shares of £1 each and 27,000 ordinary shares of £1 each.

The application was made on the grounds that the capital of the company was in excess of its wants, and that it had invested funds far in excess of its requirements, and that it would be for the benefit of the company that the capital should be reduced.

Mr. Justice Johnston granted the application.

NURSING HOME PROFITS.

ASSESSMENT TO INCOME TAX.

COURT DISMISSES APPEAL.

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE, MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON AND MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN.)

RESERVED judgment was delivered, dismissing, with costs, the appeal which was brought on behalf of the Mother Superior of the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital, Dublin, from an order of the High Court on a question of the assessment of the private nursing homes of the hospital to income tax.

The case came before the High Court on appeal by the Inspector of Taxes by way of a case stated from the determination of the Commissioners for the Special Purposes of the Income Tax Acts, who found that the private nursing homes of the hospital were not carried on as a trade. The High Court held that the Commissioners were wrong in their determination and remitted the case to the Commissioners to determine the assessments.

POOLED RECEIPTS.

The Chief Justice, in the course of his judgment referred to the facts as stated, mentioning that all these houses in Eccles street which were used as nursing homes in connection with the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital were connected with one another, and also with the main hospital building. All the receipts were pooled in one fund, out of which all expenditure was drawn. The receipts from paying patients amounted to an ascertainable figure, but no attempt was made to segregate the cost in the accounts.

It was clear, on the whole case, said the Chief Justice, that the Commissioners had conceived it impossible, by reason of the difficulty caused by conglomerate accountancy in arriving at the proper figure for expenditure on the profitable activities conducted by the Superioress, to separate these activities for tax purposes, and they concluded, therefore, that, as a matter of law, they were entitled to treat them as merged in the non-profitable activities, so as to take on the character of the latter, with the resulting advantage of escaping from taxation. In his lordship's opinion, that was a misdirection in law, and a misdirection on a point which had been the subject of judicial decision in a case which seemed to him precisely in point on the very line of reasoning upon which the Commissioners had worked. He referred to the illuminating judgment of Hamilton, J., approved in the Court of Appeal in England in Carlisle and Silloth Golf Club v. Smith.

ADDED ACTIVITIES.

The Chief Justice referred to the charitable activities in connection with the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital, to which had been added the business of providing for persons who were not beneficiaries or objects of the charity, but who were strangers to it. Though those persons were sick, he said, they were not poor, and no one could doubt that if those added activities ceased to produce a profit they would be forthwith discontinued.

Considered as activities, there could be no doubt that these activities of the Superioress and her community were (in the words of Hamilton, J.) "capable of being isolated and defined as a separate enterprise."

His lordship could find no warrant for the direction which the Commissioners gave themselves—namely, that though the activities of the enterprise were capable of being isolated and defined as separate enterprises, yet, if the profits were not apparent owing to the mixing of receipts and expenditure with the receipts and expenditure of another undertaking, they were at liberty to hold that the trade was not in fact being carried on. In his opinion, the appeal should be dismissed.

COMMISSIONERS' TESTS.

Mr. Justice FitzGibbon, in his judgment, said that it was said that Truth might be found at the bottom of a well, but he thought that the Special Commissioners were in error in seeking it here in the subterranean passage which, they had been told, "structurally connects" the main building of the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital with the houses in Eccles street, which provide the subject matter of the appeal. The Commissioners had professed their inability to separate "the activities in connection with the treatment of private patients from those in connection with what was admitted to be a charitable organisation," and, accordingly, arrived at the conclusion that the Superioress, who was in control of both, was not carrying on a trade in respect of the former. It appeared to his lordship that they had approached the question for decision from the wrong direction, and that the tests which they applied were not calculated to ascertain facts upon which to base a correct conclusion in law.

Having cited authorities on the question, Mr. Justice FitzGibbon quoted the description of the institution in Eccles street from Thom's Directory, and said that if, instead of investigating underground tunnels and making vain attempts to disentangle "interlaced activities," one of the Special Commissioners were to take a stroll upon the surface of the ground in the daylight, with his eyes open, down Eccles street, he wondered whether he might not by any possibility come across an institution which could be truthfully described as he had quoted.

IN ECCLES STREET.

Of course, they had no evidence of the existence of any institution of the kind. Still, new discoveries were made every day, and Eccles street was not so remote as the South Pole, which recently was explored, nor as inaccessible as the summit of Everest, which was surveyed the other day for the first time; and who could tell what an energetic inspector of taxes, a member of a most efficient and painstaking body of public servants, with hope in his heart and his eye on the proper side of that street, might not discover in the course of his peregrinations?

If by any chance there should turn out to be such a private hospital or nursing home, it was as impossible to confound it with that magnificent public institution which was opened in 1861 for the relief of the sick and dying poor as it would be to mistake a wealthy individual paying a guinea a day for lodging, board, and attendance in a perfectly equipped private room, with the penniless occupant of a bed in a public ward in the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital.

In conclusion, Mr. Justice FitzGibbon said that he agreed with the judgment of the High Court, and that, in his opinion, the order against which this appeal was taken was correct, and should be affirmed.

A TRADE.

Mr. Justice Murnaghan agreed, and said that, once it was found, as the Commissioners had found, that the hospital was carried on as a charity for the relief of the sick poor, it was impossible to find that the nursing home, carried on at a profit for the accommodation of those who were not objects of the charity, was one and the same. The Commissioners were not justified in arriving at the conclusion that no trade was being carried on because accounts were not kept separately.

Mr. Costello, K.C.; Mr. Molony, K.C., and Mr. Ignatius J. Kelly (instructed by Messrs. A. O'Hagan and Son), appeared for the appellant; and Mr. McCann, K.C., and Mr. Gearoid O'Sullivan (instructed by Mr. B. Collins, Revenue Solicitor), for the respondent, Mr. R. G. Davis, Inspector of Taxes.

DUBLIN MERCHANT'S ESTATE.

ALLOCATION OF FUNDS.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

In the matter of the estate of the late Daniel Phelan, merchant, Rathgar, Dublin, and of Annie Phelan, executrix of his will, and the Attorney-General.

Mr. Morgan Byrne (instructed by Messrs. Weldon and Company) applied on behalf of the plaintiff to have the allocation of certain of the funds referred to the Examiner. He said that the suit was brought in 1886 to administer the estate of the late Mr. Phelan, who died on the 29th June, 1885, and bequeathed his real and personal estate to his son, Joseph Phelan, for life, with remainder to the children of Joseph Phelan, and, in the event of Joseph Phelan not leaving any children, to the testator's own brothers and sisters, Michael, John, Winifred, Johanna and Margaret (Mrs. Cleary). The testator also left substantial legacies to city charities, including St. Mary's Convent, Cabra; the Blind Asylum, Merrion, and the Children's Hospital, Temple street, Dublin. Joseph Phelan entered into possession of the real and personal estate in accordance with the terms of the will, but died on the 24th November, 1930, without leaving any children. All the charitable bequests had been paid, and counsel now asked that the allocation of the funds between the brothers and sisters of the late Daniel Phelan should be referred to the Examiner.

Mr. Justice Johnston granted the application.

Mr. P. J. McEnery (instructed by Mr. John S. O'Connor) appeared for the Attorney-General.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN IDLE.

PRICES DULL.

There was not a single active feature on Dublin Stock Market yesterday. Free State Funds scarcely varied a fraction, but Land Bonds again lost ten shillings. The War Loan was also easier.

Banks were steady and unchanged, and the same remark applies to Rails.

Guinness units dropped three half-pence, and Power Pref gained the same amount. Grand Canal Ord. moved up 9d. to 41s. 3d., and Cables issues were firmer. Some Bakery Debs. and shares weakened, but Maguire and Gatchell Pref. and Merchants Warehousing repeated former prices.

Sixpence covered the greatest change in the big Industrials, and that is as good an indication of the market as can be gathered from the day's business.

Among the "other business done" there were several quotations for South African Mines. Now that the taxation policy of the new National Government is defined, this market will be steadier. Details of the extra taxation proposals should be made known on the introduction of the Cape Budget, which was due yesterday.

LONDON STRONG.

RUBBERS BOOMING.

The active and strong conditions which developed in the London Stock Markets at the close of last week was continued yesterday with unabated vigour, and another active session was experienced. The upward trend of values was not quite so general as was the case on Saturday; indeed, in a few directions quotations disclosed an easier tendency, but the vast majority of the price changes resulting at the close were favourable to holders. The Rubber Share Market, in particular, enjoyed a strong demand, and it is several years since so wide a business was transacted in this department. A strong tone prevailed in the commodity market. There were also some strong features in Home Industrials, while the trans-Atlantic descriptions scored big improvements as a result of the advance in Wall Street. Mines were another outstanding market, gold shares attracting strong support, while Copper and Tin descriptions strengthened in sympathy with the sharp advance in metal quotations.

There was not a great deal going on in the gilt-edged section. At the outset a rather easier tone prevailed, and Saturday's sharp improvements were partially discounted. Subsequently, the tendency became somewhat firmer, but the initial setback was not always made good. Irish Free State Land Bonds dwindled to 104¼, against 105 at the week-end. German Bonds were depressed, the Sevens losing 1½ points to 65½, while the 5½ per cent. were only 50. Trading among British Rails was on a rather modest scale, but nevertheless a firm tone prevailed, and several of the leaders were put forward further. Colonial and Foreign Rails also were overshadowed by the active conditions prevailing in other sections of the House, but here again the trend of values was favourable to holders, though actual movements were slight.

In the Industrial market trans-Atlantics were marked forward smartly, following upon the rise in Wall Street, while many of the home descriptions attracted a considerable volume of business at steadily improving values, and although profit-taking sales sent prices below the best the bulk of the movements returned at the end were in the right direction, with a number of outstanding strong features. Oils were buoyant, business being on a fairly active scale, and all the leaders and many of the more speculative issues were appreciably firmer at the end. Tea shares showed a firm front.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

CELANESE RECEDE.

Although fresh supporting orders were not lacking in the Industrial Market yesterday, considerable irregularity developed during the afternoon owing to a certain amount of profit-taking. The trans-Atlantic counters reflected the strength of Wall Street, and active dealings were witnessed after official hours in the "Street." Nickels were prominent, but they finished below the best. A reactionary tendency was noticeable among the Celanese group; but of the other Rayon issues, Courtaulds were fairly well maintained.

With Wall Street still in bullish mood, fresh strength developed among the trans-Atlantic counters in the late dealings. Nickels were prominent, touching 19⅛ at one time, eventually finishing at 18 15/16. Drugs rose to 69¼, and Steel improved to 66½, while Radios reached 10⅛ before reacting to 9 15/16. Brazilian Tractions seemed rather undecided throughout, being finally 14 11/16. "Emmies" were offered at 13s. 10½d. during the afternoon, but improved later to 14s. 3d.

Cables and Wireless stocks received moderate support at the opening, but prices gave way towards the close. The Preference finished at 75¼ after 75¼, the "A" Ordinary at 25⅛ after 25⅜, and the "B" Ordinary at 10⅛ after 10⅛.

Leylands continued in request among Motors, with a further advance to 35s., while Standards and Fords also strengthened. Austins and Rovers, however, receded a few pence. McNamara's were again inquired for. The Aviation issues were easier.

Although easier in places, Breweries generally were well maintained. Additional buying orders were received for Bass Ratcliff, Benskins, Courage, Mitchells and Butlers, Barclay, Perkins, Guinness, Allsopps and Ind Coope, the last-named closing 1s. 3d. to the good at 60s. 6d. On the other hand Charringtons reacted to 46s. 3d., Distillers to 58s. 3d., and Watney Deferred to 47s. 9d.

The Tobacco leaders had a rather dull appearance. "Bats" held around 5 3/16.

Provision and Catering issues moved within narrow limits in most instances. The Unilever issues weakened 4½d. to 27s. 7½d., while Lovell and Christmas eased to 18s. 3d.

Textiles made a rather mixed showing. Supporting orders were received for Bleachers, Wm. Hollins, Listers, Whitworth and Mitchell and Salts (Saltaire) Preference, but J. and P. Coats and Fine Spinners finished a few pence easier.

In the Rayon section the Celanese issues were subject to profit-taking. American Celanese gave way 1/16 to 7⅞, and Canadian Celanese lost 1/16 at 3 11/16, while British Celanese finished 10½d. down on balance at 12s. 9d., after opening at 13s. 9d. Courtaulds fluctuated between 34s. and 34s. 6d., eventually closing at 34s. 4½d.

James Finlays and Harrisons and Crosfield Deferred continued their advance, assisted by the trend of the Rubber and Tea markets. The former put on 9d. to 64s. 6d., and the latter 2s. 6d. to 67s. 6d., while Dunlops also retained their upward movement, assisted by the rise in rubber, finishing 7½d. to the good at 25s. 10½d.

Although leaving off under the best, London Brick were finally 3d. harder at 59s. 9d., and Turner and Newalls strengthened to 28s. 6d., but other Building Supply issues moved irregularly. Molasses and Chemicals were better. Boots Drug at 7 11/16, Salt Union at 34s. and Triplex Glass at 50s. 9d., were all dull spots.

RUBBER SHARES STRONG.

The strong tone prevailing in the commodity market on Saturday last was continued yesterday, and spot at one time reached 3 11/16d. per lb. Subsequently a slightly easier tendency developed, and values reacted, but before the close of the market firmer conditions developed again, and the market closed on a firm note at substantially improved quotations. This sharp advance in raw material values brought in buyers in the share section, and the volume of trading passing was on a more active scale than for many months past. The market was none too well supplied with shares, and in face of the strong demand which developed share values were marked forward smartly all round. Kuala Lumpur were an outstanding feature, and at the close an advance of 2s. 1½d. was shown to 28s. 1½d., while Malacca were 2s. better at 19s. 4½d. Manchester North Borneo put on 1s. 3d., as did Linggi, while Rubber Trusts spurted to 21s., against 19s. 10½d. at the week-end. Tandjong Malim, Telogoredjo and Pataling were other good markets, while Vallambrosa spurted to 8s. 10½d., a gain of 10½d. on the day. Anglo-Dutch, Batu Tiga, Highlands and United Sua Betong were each 9d. better, and F. M. S. Plantations and Grand Central each put on 6d. Numerous other improvements were recorded, and will be found in another column. A firm tone characterised the opening of the raw material department, and, after easing in the afternoon on profit-taking, the market improved again at the close, and prices, although below the best, were still substantially higher on the day. Business was on a good scale. Spot closed at 3 7/16d. per lb., after moving between 3 7/16d. and 3 11/16d., while July to September was finally called 3 11/16d. per lb., and October to December 3⅞d. per lb. London stocks of rubber were 125 tons higher on the week at 41,968 tons, against 56,504 tons a year ago, but Liverpool stocks were 322 tons lower as compared with the last return, the figure being 56,795 tons and comparing with 60,149 tons twelve months ago.

OIL SHARES IMPROVE.

Dealers in Oil shares reported an increased turnover yesterday, more particularly in the recognised leaders, although the more speculative favourites received a fair amount of attention, and higher prices were general at the close. Continental operators sent buying orders for internationals, such as Royal Dutch and Shells, which naturally helped the market. A keen demand arose for other leading counters, which also were not slow to respond. There was a strong demand for Anglo-Persians. Although no news came to hand from the company, it was reported from Teheran that the Medjliss had ratified the new agreement with the Anglo-Persian Oil Company. According to the report, the League of Nations has taken cognisance of the agreement following its signature by the Persian Council of Ministers, and it now only remains to be signed by the Shah before coming into force.

LONDON MINING MARKET QUIET.

RHODESIAN COPPERS SUPPORTED.

Most sections of the Mining market provided a good feature yesterday, but activity was not well maintained in any particular department.

The share market received a good fillip from the metal market, all four of the principal base metals finishing at record high levels for the current year. Outstanding was a jump of nearly £8 in the price of tin above Friday's final level. Business in the shares, however, was on a moderate scale, and movements were mostly small.

Trading in Rhodesian Coppers was fairly active in sympathy with an advance of £1 6s. 3d. in the price of copper. Roans especially were in late demand from America.

A couple of the West Africans continued to attract the attention of buyers, but West Australians became subdued after buying orders from the Commonwealth had been fulfilled.

Kaffirs opened quite firmly, with a good enquiry for several low-grade specialties, on the theory that these undertakings will fare best under the new tax proposals. Business, however, was not maintained, buyers showing a disposition to await definite news regarding the Budget speech. Nevertheless, a fairly lengthy list of more or less substantial appreciations was scored. Closing prices:

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA ISSUE.

The following is issued by the Treasury:—The Chancellor of the Exchequer has agreed to an immediate Commonwealth of Australia issue not exceeding five years in maturity for the purpose of refunding certain Australian loans bearing interest at the rate of 6½ per cent. The Chancellor of the Exchequer wishes it to be understood that this is an exceptional measure, and does not in any way imply the withdrawal of his request regarding the optional conversion of trustee securities published in the Press on Januarr 14th last.

NITRATE COAST CHARTERING.

There were few signs of improvement in freights last week. An interesting feature was the revival of chartering from the Nitrate Coast to continental ports, and three vessels were taken for June loading. The freight secured, however, is considered very disappointing, on the basis of 20s., with full options, and charterers are still endeavouring to secure another concession. Activity developed in the River Plate section, and rates improved. In North America the only activity was in Montreal grain, for which another half-a-dozen vessels were arranged.

RAND DEAL RUMOURS.

There are strong rumours in Johannesburg that negotiations are pending which may result in East Rand Consolidated acquiring the farm Spaarwater from Lace Proprietary mines. Interesting developments are reported from the South-West Rand, where prospecting operations at some points are yielding very encouraging results. The Western Reefs Co. has taken options over further large areas, nearly doubling its original holding, and the Middle Witwatersrand (Western Areas) Co. has purchased outright two farms formerly held under option. Mr. N. S. Erleigh, one of the directors of Luipaards Vlei, is leaving for England shortly in connection with the arrangements which are being made for the transfer of the head office of the company from London to Johannesburg.

GREEK BANK RATE REDUCED.

The Greek bank rate has been reduced from 9 per cent. to 7 per cent.

WAR DEBT PAYMENTS EXPECTED.

If the Steagall Gold Clauses Abolition Bill is passed all debts owed by foreigners to America, including war debts, will be payable in depreciated paper dollars. In these circumstances the Government will probably ask for some payment of the war debt instalment due from Great Britain on June 15, and the payment of her defaulted December instalment by France has been definitely demanded by President Roosevelt, as a necessary prerequisite of any negotiations for readjustment. Following the introduction of Mr. Steagall's Bill rumours have sprung up that a free market for gold will be established in New York, where the price of gold will be allowed to rise to its natural level. These rumours persist, in spite of the denials of Mr. Woodin, and gold mining shares spurted on Wall street in the expectation of a gold premium.

ASSOCIATED DYERS.

In a circular to the shareholders of Associated Dyers and Cleaners, which owns the entire issued capital of Eastman and Son, J. Pullar and Sons and other dyeing and cleaning businesses, Mr. Frank Eastman, who retired from the chairmanship of the company two and a-half years ago, asserts that there is need for more practical knowledge of the industry on the Board. Mr. Eastman states that he has been approached by a large body of shareholders, who desire his return to the Board, and that his name will be proposed for the directorate at the coming annual general meeting. It is also proposed that Major William Gillespie, who as a trustee represents a large shareholding, should seek election to the Board.

EXPECTED ANNOUNCEMENTS.

With the coming of the summer months some falling off will be experienced in the number of dividend decisions and reports. Meanwhile several interesting announcements due to be made soon include the following:—

Anglo-Persian Oil report.
Linggi Rubber accounts.
J. Lyons and Co. results.
Ruston and Hornsby report.
Brownlie and Co. accounts.
Barry and Staines report.
N.B. Rubber accounts.
Shell and Royal Dutch reports.
R. and J. Hill report.
R. S. McColl and Co. results.

In view of the halving of the dividend to 5 per cent., less tax, special interest is being taken in the full accounts of Barry and Staines Linoleum.

THE MONEY MARKET

GOLD AND SILVER DEARER.

The price of gold yesterday further rose 3d. to 123s. 3d. per ounce fine. There is no premium on the metal at this price. The sum of £250,000 was available, and was taken for the Continent.

Credit remained in plentiful supply, and loans over the night were offering at ½ down to ¼ per cent. In the discount market the banks were buyers of June Treasuries at 7/16 per cent. and Julys at ½ per cent. The "hot" bills were offered at ¼ per cent. to a shade over, and fine three months' bank paper was around 7/16 per cent. Silver was 1/16 better on Continental buying at 18 11/16d. per ounce for spot and 19d. forward delivery.

Interest in the foreign exchange market yesterday was again centred on the weakness of the dollar and on the renewed firmness of the principal gold currencies under the lead of the franc. Dollars finished at 3.98½, as compared with 3.96 on Saturday morning. The Canadian dollar, on the other hand, was ½ lower at 4.50½. Francs at one time touched 84 11/16. The closing rate was ⅝ lower on balance at 84 11/16.

Other European exchanges moved in sympathy with the franc, the Swiss rate falling by about 15 to 17.30½, the Belgian rate by 22 to 24.00½, and the Dutch exchange by 7 to 8.30. Reichsmarks closed at 14.33½, as against 14 11/16. The South African exchange quotations were unchanged.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT.

CHARGES OF PERSONATION.

SENTENCED PERSONS APPEAL.

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

Appeals by persons who had been convicted in the Dublin District Court on charges of personation at the general election were listed for hearing.

Mr. Lynch, K.C., with whom was Mr. M. C. O'Callaghan (instructed by Mr. Joseph H. Dixon), objected to the proceedings, on the ground that the name of the Attorney-General should be added to, or substituted for, the names of the presiding officers at the polling booths. Proceedings in both the Court below and in the Circuit Court, he said, had been initiated in the names of the presiding officers, although these officers were not empowered to initiate the proceedings.

Judge Davitt noted the objection.

The first case heard was that in which Mary Duff, Mountpleasant square, Dublin, appealed from a sentence of two months' imprisonment and 10s. fine imposed upon her by Mr. Cussen on a charge of personation at the Synge Street Schools Polling Booth on the 24th January last.

Mr. Lynch, K.C., and Mr. M. C. O'Callaghan (instructed by Mr. Joseph H. Dixon) appeared for the appellant, and Mr. T. O'Donnell, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the respondent, M. McWeeney, Montpelier Manor, Monkstown, the presiding officer at the election.

DECISIONS CONFIRMED.

Guard Henry Nugent gave evidence of arrest of the appellant, on the direction of the presiding officer. She denied that she had personated anyone.

Desmond McWeeney said that the appellant came in the early forenoon and gave the name of Miss Jones. He made her make an affirmation. In the evening she came in again, and asked for a ballot paper to vote. He then directed a Guard to arrest her.

Mr. Lynch submitted that the case was not proved, as there was no evidence that the appellant had voted in the name of anybody on the register.

Judge Davitt confirmed the decision of the District Court, but ordered that the appellant should be placed in the second division.

In the case of Leo Fitzgerald, Summerhill, Dublin, who was sentenced to two months' imprisonment and fined 20s., the decision was confirmed.

A similar order was made on the appeal of Thomas Mitchell, Corporation Buildings, Dublin, who had been sentenced to two months' imprisonment and a fine of 40s.

DECISION REVERSED.

Owing to the non-appearance of Wilfred Ryan, a presiding officer, the Judge reversed a sentence of two months and a fine of £5 which had been imposed on Ernest Ryan, living at the Soldiers' Home, 3A College street.

CIVIC GUARDS AND THEIR PAY.

REPLY TO MR. MacENTEE.

The Garda Review, the organ of the Civic Guard, in the current number, replies to a speech made by Mr. MacEntee, the Minister for Finance, in the Dail on Tuesday last on the subject of their pay and the cost of living figure.

Having denied that the Guards ever agreed to the relation of pay with the cost of living figure, and expressed the belief that such a policy will have the most serious reactions on the force, the Review quotes the following extract from Mr. MacEntee's speech:—

"When the scale of remuneration was fixed in 1924 by pay order, that pay order was accompanied by a memorandum which clearly related the pay of the Garda with the cost of living figure. That scale, when laid down, was accepted by the Government of the time, the Oireachtas, and the Garda themselves, and it was recognised that, as soon as the cost of living figure fell below 70, the scales should be revised. The scale was now 55, and, consequently, if there was no financial crisis, they should have to consider the special case of the Garda."

The Review denies that there was such an acceptance, and says:—

"It is with the greatest surprise and apprehension that we now read the statement that it is the intention of the Government to apply the basis of remuneration suggested by that memorandum, which, as we have shown, was never accepted by the Garda, and was never even seriously considered by the late Government at any time.

"Such a policy, if put into effect, would have the most serious reactions on the force, following on the assurances given that the present reductions were purely a temporary measure, and that the existing standards of pay were recognised by the Government as the very minimum—an assurance that was given in concrete form by the gracious speech of the Minister for Justice at the presentation of the Scott Medals for Valour in the Dépôt on May 18 last.

"We are concerned for the effects of these conflicting statements on the force, and we cannot then but feel that the time has come when the Government must make a definite declaration of its policy towards the Garda. For the sake of the future of the force, such a declaration is immediately necessary."

IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Wilful Destruction : A Memorable Ride : An Irish Airman.
Euston's Centenary : The Easy 'Eighties.

Captain "Paddy" Flinn.

The many friends of Captain "Paddy" Flinn, who was badly injured when the air liner, "City of Washington," which he was piloting, crashed in France nearly three years ago, will be pleased to hear that he has again taken to flying, and is well on the way to obtain his private pilot's licence at Croydon airport. He is one of the few men who can be described as "born pilots." During the War he fought with the Royal Flying Corps, and later became an officer in the Royal Air Force. When the Free State was constituted he returned to Ireland and joined the Army Air Corps. After a few years this proved too dull for him, and it was then that he joined Imperial Airways. After the "City of Washington" accident he suffered the loss of his left leg, but as soon as he was allowed out he and his wheeled chair became a familiar sight around the hangars at Croydon. Now, with an artificial leg, he has taken up flying again, and it will not be long before he qualifies for his licence. Captain Flinn is not the only pilot who has overcome the difficulties of an artificial leg in flying; the late Miss Cicele O'Brien was similarly handicapped, but she was an excellent pilot.

The Easy "'Eighties."

I met a retired Revenue officer the other day, who told me that he entered the Civil Service in the early 'eighties. Life in those days was quite uneventful. The Revenue officers, who looked after the interests of the Revenue in rural districts, were officially designated "ride officers," because they rode horses when travelling on official business. They were allowed £20 per annum for the upkeep of a horse. In those happy days the officers were not overworked or abused by the public and politicians. In 1880 the only Excise taxes were those levied on chicory, malt and home-manufactured spirits, while the Customs tariff only included twenty-five commodities. I asked this pensioner what he thought of the present Free State Customs tariff. "It's colossal," he replied. "I'm afraid that very few of the men who have to carry it out will live long enough to enjoy their pensions."

Wilful Destruction.

There is surely an undiscovered streak of the vandal lurking somewhere in the nature of Dublin's population. I have come to this conclusion because hardly a day passes without some evidence of wilful destruction confronting me at some point. In some places it will be the damaged or totally destroyed garden seats which local authorities placed along some favoured suburban roads; in others it will be damaged lamps; in others private houses will be the object of attack; but the latest manifestation of the spirit which I have encountered is the destruction of young and unprotected trees on busy thoroughfares. Why anyone should want to destroy a garden seat which is a boon to the public is difficult to understand, but it is even more difficult to understand the mind (or lack of mind) which would regard the destruction, or damage, of trees on our public streets as a legitimate form of recreation. Only yesterday I saw on a suburban road a newly-planted, and barely budding, young tree which had all the tender bark stripped neatly from its entire length. A few yards away was another which had its branches broken and hanging limply. Who does this? And when is the damage done? Is it at night, or in broad daylight?

A Strong Pull.

The following example of the quaint expressions which are sometimes used by children was given to me recently by a woman friend. My informant was engaged in gardening, accompanied by her small boy, aged seven. The little fellow, who was anxious to show what he could do, started a tug-of-war with a deep-rooted weed, which put up a strong resistance to his efforts to dislodge it. After much tugging and straining, the plant came up by the roots, and the little fellow displayed the evidence of his prowess triumphantly. "What a strong little man you are growing up to be!" remarked his mother admiringly. "Indeed, I must be, Mummy," retorted the infant Hercules; "the whole world was pulling at the other end."

A Memorable Ride.

A little while ago one of my correspondents related in these columns the story of the memorable attempt made in 1869 by Sir Hugh McCalmont for a wager of £500 to travel from Newbridge, Co. Kildare, to Dublin on horseback and thence to cross by boat to England on the night before the Derby, so as to reach Epsom in time to see the race on the following day. The adventure failed because of the insuperable difficulty of chartering a boat at the North Wall, but (says my correspondent) it convinced McCalmont that Spot, his famous steed, was capable of breaking time records for the twenty-five miles journey from Newbridge to Dublin. Some of his brother officers having challenged his statement that he reached Kingsbridge Station in one hour and twenty-five minutes, he offered to ride Spot for £200 from Newbridge to Islandbridge Barracks, Dublin, in an hour and twenty minutes, provided that the horse was first allowed to undergo a special training for the event.

The Challenge Answered.

McCalmont's regiment unfortunately moved to England that summer, and consequently for some months the horse got very little exercise. His groom, however, endeavoured to keep him as fit as possible, and in the autumn McCalmont returned to Newbridge to answer the challenge. The event was widely discussed in sporting circles in Ireland, and there were numerous side bets. McCalmont had made several other bets besides the original bet of £200; for he was determined to more than avenge the loss sustained on Derby eve. Everything was most carefully arranged for the occasion, and timekeepers were appointed. The race commenced one morning at 6.15, just when there was sufficient light, and McCalmont arrived at Island Bridge at 7.30-32 a.m., leaving him with over four minutes to spare, and this notwithstanding the fact that Spot had burst a small blood vessel when ten miles from Dublin.

Euston's Centenary.

The London railway station with which Irish people have the most intimate acquaintance is certainly Euston, and they will be interested to know that it reaches its centenary about the end of May this year. In May, 1833, the Royal Assent was given to the Act promoted by the London and Birmingham Railway, which was opened for traffic five years later as the nucleus of the London and North Western Railway, now merged in the L.M.S. system. On the iron gates of Euston Station may still be seen, thickly coated with the grime of a century, the initials of the original owners, the name of whom is now almost entirely forgotten, L.B.R. But the most monumental relic of the older Euston is the great Doric arch, once so greatly admired and now so slighted, which seems to have been built to withstand even the crack of doom. Below that massive arch and through those grimy gates have passed most of the notabilities of Great Britain and Ireland in the hundred years which have elapsed since both were first erected. The terminus has its connection with Ireland's first railway, the Dublin and Kingstown line, through the mail services from Westland row to Euston.

SIR JOHN LAVERY VISITS PREMIER.

PORTRAIT NEARLY FINISHED.

Sir John Lavery, who is engaged in painting a portrait of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, paid a visit to The Hillocks yesterday afternoon and had tea with the Premier.

He informed a reporter that it would require two other sittings before the portrait of the Prime Minister is completed. Yesterday he painted the Premier sitting at tea in his kitchen.

Mr. Macdonald managed to snatch a few hours for golf at Speybay yesterday. In the morning he was hard at work, and in the evening, after a long walk, he was back at his desk again. He is enjoying excellent health.

DERBY OWNERS ON PROSPECTS.

TIPS FROM THOSE WHO SHOULD KNOW

Famous racehorse owners and jockeys gave their "tips" for the Derby at the London Press Club's annual Derby luncheon yesterday. Lord Riddell presided.

Proposing the toast of "The Pious Memory of the Derby Stakes Founder," Lord Riddell said that the Aga Khan had written: "For your private information, both my horses have done as well as one could expect."

Lord Lonsdale said:—"I am rather in hopes that Fred Darling's will win, and I don't see why it should not."

Lord Derby, after announcing that Donoghue would ride Thrapston, his second string, said:—"Whatever may have been said, there have been no trials between the three horses in our stables. They will all run on their own merit. I believe them all to be well, and seeing that Mr. Lambton said Hyperion is in his very best form I cannot help—without giving a tip—being sanguine that I may at all events get place money on Wednesday."

YOUNG LOVER'S CHANCE.

Sir Alfred Butt, owner of Young Lover, said:—"This is the first time I have had the opportunity of running a horse in the Derby, and not being perhaps sufficiently experienced in these gatherings I propose to be frank and tell you all I know. At 12.30 I telephoned my trainer, Mr. Frank Butters. He said that all my three runners are well. They completed their preparation quite satisfactorily. I do not think the ground will be suitable for them; I am hopeful that it will not be entirely suitable for any of the other competitors.

"I am very much perplexed to tell you anything reliable about Young Lover's prospects. He is well. If we get some rain we believe he will stay, and I am hopeful, at all events, that he may join Lord Derby in getting a place."

Lord Carnarvon, owner of Madagascar, said:—"I was foolish enough to invest £50 at 50 to 1. This unfortunate horse, in consequence, is going to compete on Wednesday. He is awfully well. My only regret is that the weights are not raised one stone."

"I think very seriously that my ex-horse (King Salmon) is very likely to win this year's Derby. As you know, nothing in the world makes a greater fool of you than a racehorse. I am credibly informed by my friend, Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen (the owner of King Salmon) that he thinks King Salmon has a chance second to none."

Lord Zetland said that if Manitoba does not win, the race will probably be won by the most unlikely horse.

Steve Donoghue said that no doubt Manitoba and Gordon Richards together make a very good combination that will take some beating. "My horse on Saturday did not please me, and I was not surprised when we got home to find that it was wrong." He added that his son Pat rang him up before the luncheon about his chances. "I remind you of that in case he happens to win the Derby."

TWO BRAVE BOY SCOUTS.

Great excitement was caused in the vicinity of the Four Courts, Dublin, yesterday evening, when a man was observed hanging by his arms from Winetavern street Bridge. Two Boy Scouts—Joseph O'Neill, of South Earl street, and Edward O'Neill, St. Thomas street—ran to his assistance. One held the man's arms and the other climbed over the parapet of the bridge and assisted him to keep his footing until Guard 114 D arrived and dragged him to safety. The man was escorted away by the guard.

A FILM OF THE WEEK.

"BAROUD" AT THE GRAFTON.

"Baroud" (the Grafton's picture for this week) brings back the desert film that once we knew, lands where the Foreign Legion and the Sheik compete for one's applause, and skies are blue—a world of unsophisticated passion that, not so long ago, was quite the fashion.

Gangsters are very much more common now, and, though Rex Ingram was a giant then, his first attempt in sound reminds us how the taste has altered since that period when he ruled the films: what changes there have been since his "Four Horsemen" stormed across the screen!

If you are feeling bored with gangsters, or college cuties, or the splendid lives of the upper-class in U.S.A., a visit to "Baroud" is recommended. The plot provides romance, and quite a lot of thrills besides.

THEATRE ROYAL.

A WELL-BALANCED PROGRAMME.

Scotland Yard has its "Big Five"; so have the English banks. In a totally different sphere, the Five Ambassadors who perform this week at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, may be described as the "big five" of their own peculiar form of entertainment. They combine colour and melody in a turn which is harmonious alike to the eye and the ear. A piano, a violin, a harmonium, and two voices create the melody, which is visually assisted by costumes reminiscent of the ultra-romantic operas, and enlivened by considerable verve and dash. Altogether, it is an attractive turn.

Two clever comedians on the programme are Cliff Martell and Tom D. Newell. On the whole, we preferred Newell, with his impersonation of that garrulous type of old dame whose ludicrous idiosyncracies always go down well on the stage because they are so true to life; while as a sylphide very much run to seed he provided rich comedy. Martell is the sort of man we would all like at our parties; for he is a born entertainer. His stories, even though you may not see much point, hold your attention by the manner of their telling, and, as tricky performer with the keys of a piano, he is decidedly out of the ordinary. Doyle and Doyle are another pair who give some lively entertainment of a musical kind; Nice, Florio, and Lubow present a turn which is distinctly unusual; Jack Crosbie and Co. delight with a neat little sketch concerning the adventures of a confidence gang; and Sam Mayo, Smith and his girl friend, and Haywood, Hay, and Dorina complete a well-balanced programme.

VARIETY AT OLYMPIA.

Appearing in the Olympia Theatre, Dublin, this week is Gretl Vernon, described as "The Viennese Nightingale." This singer, who deserved the applause which followed her selections at last night's performances, has a voice of high range which she controls admirably and into which she puts agreeable expression and intonation.

Fred Lewis was amongst those who contributed to the variety programme. He is an interesting entertainer and adaptable to the characteristics of the music hall favourites whom he impersonates. Soga and Hirukawa and company, Japanese performers, gave their audiences some thrills in the dangerous balancing feats that they exhibited, especially in the "Slide for Life." Joe and Ida Newton were an entertaining comedy pair, and Augustin and Hartley were amusing in a "whirlwind of comedy and jumping." Phyllis and Giles, who are not strangers in Dublin, presented their comedy musical piece, "On the Farm," with as great success as formerly. Lester and Merry, comedians, had some novel conceptions of the requirements of income tax forms, and Joyce and Shields displayed ability as tap dancers.

REVUE AT THE QUEEN'S THEATRE.

At the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, yesterday afternoon there was a good attendance at each of the three "houses." On the stage, the revue, "Going Crazy," was produced by an excellent company, which included Bob Barlow, a very versatile artiste, who received hearty applause. Pat Nash was responsible for many laughs, while Nellie Anderson proved herself a good vocalist and entertainer. The ten Queen's Moonbeam Ladies contributed dances of various nations, and the performance was enhanced by Mr. Alec C. Fryer and his band in some splendid numbers.

On the screen was shown "Guilty or Not Guilty?" in which Betty Compson took a leading part.

THE EXTRA HALFPENNY.

EFFECT ON ENGLISH NEWSPAPERS.

Yesterday was the first day on which the new Free State tariffs on English newspapers came into force. The tariff, imposed in the recent Budget, amounts to two-fifths of a penny, and the English papers having decided to pass the tax on to the public, penny newspapers coming from Great Britain will in future cost their Irish purchasers three halfpence.

Officials of the principal distributing agencies in Dublin were unable yesterday to pass any opinion on the tariff. "It will be impossible to tell how the sales of English newspapers will be affected," one of them said, "until to-morrow morning, when we get the returns from the Dublin and provincial newsagents. As far as we can judge, the sales in the shops are about the same as before, possibly a little less, while the street sales are keeping up fairly well."

Inquiries at the principal newsagents' shops in the city gave conflicting results, but it seems that in most cases, although the circulation of British newspapers has suffered, it has not been affected to any great extent as yet.

RETAIL AGENTS' MEETING.

A meeting of the Irish Retail Newsagents' Association, Mr. J. McEnerney presiding, was held at the committee rooms, Dublin, to discuss the newspaper tax, which came into operation yesterday.

After a lengthy discussion it was decided, in spite of the difference in terms to carry on with the sale. In the meantime, a deputation was appointed to wait on the wholesalers and publishers, to discuss the question and terms for the trade as early as possible.

NEW HOUSES BEING ERECTED.

Senator Johnson and Mr. W. Norton, T.D., together with Mr. P. J. Cairns, chairman, Mr. C. J. Keogan, a member of the committee, and Mr. T. Nagle, secretary of the Post Office Utility Society, yesterday inspected a terrace of ten houses which are nearing completion at Merville avenue, Fairview, Dublin. The society was only started last September, and this is the first job to be finished under its auspices. These houses are brick-fronted dwellings, with a sitting-room, living room, three bedrooms, scullery, bathroom and lavatory. With the £70 grant for each house given by the Free State Government, the net cost of each dwelling to the society is £465. Each of the ten houses has already been allotted to a tenant purchaser, and two of these are not Post Office employés. Each tenant has given a £40 deposit, and the instalments to be paid will amount to 14s. weekly (to include rent, ground rent and rates) for a period of thirty-five years.

Similar houses, thirty-two in number, will be erected by the society in Kimmage, and more than half of these will be occupied by people not working in the Post Office. Work has not started on these houses yet, but all have been booked.

Fifty better-class houses will be built by the same society in Gaeltacht Park, Whitehall, Co. Dublin, and, although the land has only lately been acquired, every house has been allocated. Messrs. W. and J. Bolger, Dublin, are the contractors.

THE LIFEBOAT SERVICE.

AN APPEAL FOR MORE HELPERS.

Mr. Gerald Byrne, Chairman, in moving the adoption of the annual report of the Kingstown (Dun Laoghaire) Branch of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, in the Town Hall, Dun Laoghaire, last night, mentioned that, notwithstanding the general economic depression, the income of the branch had been fairly well maintained, although the house-to-house collection organised by the Ladies' Guild did not reach the high figure of the previous year. The sums received by way of annual subscriptions (£50 odd) were equal to those of 1931. On the other hand, the expenses of the station were reduced by the closing down of the general store, the running expenses of which had been a charge against the branch. The cost of maintaining the lifeboat and station still exceeds the income derived from all sources, and on behalf of the committee he appealed to the residents of the Borough area for such increased financial support as would make the branch self-supporting. The lifeboat and station had been maintained in good order, two services being rendered during the year, in one of which two lives were saved. The committee desired to thank the members of the Ladies' Guild of Dun Laoghaire and Blackrock, and also the collectors who assisted in the annual flag day, for their valuable services.

During the severe storm which took place last February the lifeboat was called upon to stand by to assist boats in danger of being broken up. The lifeboat actually had to take two men off one boat. It was also out in connection with the unfortunate aircraft accident which took place at Dalkey the other day. The Howth lifeboat was out on Sunday last, when a boy fell into the sea at the Baily. That showed the necessity for having lifeboats, and for supporting that institution.

The Rev. Canon Hall, in seconding, said he looked upon the lifeboat organisation as the St. John Ambulance Brigade of the sea, and considered it most important for the community to support it. He suggested that each lady in her own district should have a number of assistants to be trained in the work. The motion was adopted.

Mrs. Percy Martin proposed, Mr. A. E. Joynt seconded, and it was resolved that the Earl Fitzwilliam be re-elected president; Mr. Gerald Byrne, chairman; Mr. J. A. Fulton, hon. treasurer; Mr. C. S. McNeill, hon. secretary, and Messrs. J. A. Kinnear and Co., hon. auditors, and also that the outgoing committee, with the addition of Mr. Percy Martin, be re-appointed.

WORLD EDUCATION CONFERENCE.

AN IRISH EXHIBITION.

A prominent feature in connection with the forthcoming World Conference on Education, which takes place in Dublin from July 29 to August 4 next will be the exhibition of Irish education, which is being held at University College, Dublin, during the Conference week. The object of the exhibition is to show to those who attend the Conference the part taken by the Irish nation in national and international education as regards both the general development of Christian culture and the distinctive advance of Irish education during the last fifteen years. The exhibition is being planned with the active co-operation of the National University and its colleges, under the general supervision of the Professor of Education in University College, Dublin—the Rev. T. Corcoran, S.J., D.Litt. The registration offices for the Conference will be at University College, so that all visitors will have an opportunity of seeing this interesting exhibition.

CLERICAL MANAGERS OF SCHOOLS.

ANNUAL MEETING IN DUBLIN.

The annual meeting of the Dublin Provincial Council of the Clerical Managers of National Schools was held in the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, on Friday last. There were present:—The Right Rev. Mgr. John Delaney, P.P., V.G., Rathvilly; the Very Rev. Canon McNamara, P.P., Castlecomer; the Very Rev. James Rossiter, P.P., V.F., Ferns; the Very Rev. Laurence Brophy, P.P., V.F., Newbridge; the Right Rev. Mgr. Waters, P.P., V.G., St. Columba's, Dublin, hon. secretary. Canon McNamara presided.

Mgr. Delaney, the treasurer, laid before the meeting a summary of the financial position of the Council and a statement of accounts, which was approved by the meeting. An important resolution on the insurance of schools, proposed by the Very Rev. James Rossiter, was adopted, and sent on to the General Council by the secretary.

IRISH AERO CLUB.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual general meeting of the Irish Aero Club, which was adjourned from 4th March last, was resumed last night at the Dolphin Hotel, Dublin.

At the opening of the meeting Mr. P. Gore Grimes, who presided, proposed a vote of sympathy with the relatives of the late Major Samuel Dunckley and his passenger, Mr. Edward Clayson, who were killed in the aeroplane crash at Dalkey Sound on Wednesday evening last. Mr. Grimes said that all regretted the unfortunate and untimely end of Major Dunckley. Senator O. St. John Gogarty seconded the resolution, which was passed in silence, all members standing.

The hon. secretary, Mr. Thomas O'B. Kelly, then presented an interim report, which showed that the aeroplanes of the club flew 211 hours 15 minutes in the months of April and May, 1933, as compared with 121 hours 30 minutes in the corresponding period of last year.

It was stated by the chairman that at the inquest on the late Major Dunckley it was suggested by the Coroner that a fund should be raised for the fishermen who attempted to save the life of Major Dunckley and his companion. Major Poë, of St. Ann's, Coliemore road, Dalkey, had agreed to act as treasurer in conjunction with Mr. Grimes. The Chairman recommended the fund to the members of the club, and paid a tribute to the men, who, he said, took their lives in their hands far oftener than any man who flies an aeroplane. Up to the time of the close of the meeting Mr. Grimes had received over £19 for the fund. A sum of £4 1s. 8d. was found on the body of Mr. Clayson, and his widow had directed that this should be given to the boatmen.

Colonel C. F. Russell suggested that the men who assisted in the salving of the wreckage of the aeroplane should also receive recognition.

The following officers were elected on ballot:—President, Lady Athlumney. Council—Captain H. J. Hosie, Messrs. P. G. Grimes, Joseph McAuley, R. H. Hill, C. Crowe and T. O'B. Kelly (hon. secretary).

THE LAWN-MOWER.

DUBLIN ROTARY CLUB ADDRESS.

At the weekly luncheon meeting of the Dublin Rotary Club yesterday, Mr. J. H. Cathcart, one of its members, read a paper on "Machinery on the Farm and Lawn," in which he traced the origin and history of the lawn-mower.

The idea of producing a mower to cut grass, said Mr. Cathcart, appeared to have occurred first to Edward Budding, of Stroud, Gloucestershire, who, in October, 1830, took out the first patent for a machine, which is at present in the South Kensington Museum, London. It was believed that Budding got the idea for his grass-cutting machine from one of a somewhat similar type which was used for shearing the nap off cloth in a factory where he was employed. After that other patents for different makes of mowers were taken out; but the first real advance in design was made in 1869, when a patent was taken out for an entirely new type of lawn-mower—one with side-driving wheels, which is the type universally used to-day.

At the close of his address, Mr. Cathcart gave a practical demonstration on two machines to show how they should be kept in good condition.

The Rev. Dr. Hanna (President) thanked Mr. Cathcart, on behalf of the club for his interesting address.

A letter was received from Mr. A. Lynn, President of the Colwyn Bay Club, expressing his club's deep appreciation of the reception given by the Dublin Rotarians to the members of the club who were with him in Dublin a week ago. An invitation was conveyed in the same letter to the members of the Dublin Rotary Club to visit Colwyn Bay at their convenience.

It was arranged that about fifteen members should leave for Colwyn Bay on July 1st.

MAN'S INSIGNIFICANCE.

FAITH AND MODERN SCIENCE.

In a paper on "Faith and Modern Science," which he delivered before the College Theological Society at Trinity College, Dublin, last night, Mr. W. C. Bourns, B.A., B.A.I., said that recent advances in Astronomy pointed to the insignificance of man in the universe; in fact, man seemed to be a mere accident. Scientific thought here seemed to confuse physical and moral significance. Science had endeavoured to include within its scope the whole of the unseen as well as the seen, the spiritual as well as the natural. Scientific methods were inadequate to deal with spiritual phenomena.

Knowledge of God was not of the kind that science had of the physical world. His knowledge was gained in a relationship of trust and obedience. Knowledge of a great teacher came only through discipleship. God was beyond the reach of human understanding and knowledge of Him came not only to those who were clever and wise, but to those who were loyal and true of heart.

SKERRIES READY FOR SUMMER SEASON.

ASSOCIATION'S APPEAL TO VISITORS.

The Skerries Visitors' Association has been very active lately, and now reports that everything is in order for the summer visitors. Acid was purchased and spread on the rocks and concrete at the bathing places to remove all growths of seaweed, barnacles, etc., which accumulated during the winter and spring. Spring-boards had to be put in position, and new matting was procured for them.

The seats on the beach received bad treatment last season. They cost £3 each, and ten of the eighteen were badly broken, and legs and backs had to be renewed. All are now painted and in position, and the Association appeals to all decently-minded people to protect its property from similar treatment this season. Any definite report will lead to a prosecution.

New works contemplated this season are a metal diving pillar, about 100 yards from the spring-board bathing place, and high-water dials to indicate the time of high tide.

The Committee adds that if it is encouraged by sufficient subscriptions its efforts to improve Skerries will go further afield; but if its property is not respected it will cease to function, and let things drift as they may.

FOR DALKEY FISHERMEN.

INAUGURATION OF FUND.

A fund for the three fishermen who recovered the body of Major Dunckley when the aeroplane piloted by him crashed last week at Dalkey, has been inaugurated, on the suggestion of the Coroner and jury who inquired into the accident. We are informed that these fishermen often recover bodies lost off the coast and do an amount of other useful work without hope of reward. It is now felt that the public should show some appreciation of their efforts. Major Poë, of St. Anne's, Coliemore road, Dalkey, is the treasurer of the fund, and will be pleased to receive subscriptions.

ROYAL IRISH REGIMENT DINNER.

Major-General J. B. Forster presided at the annual dinner of the Royal Irish Regiment, which was held at the Army and Navy Club, London, on the 26th inst. (says the Morning Post).

Chichester, H. J. Downing, G. A. Elliot, G. M. Grogan, Sir W. E. Edgeworth-Johnstone, and E. Roche-Kelly; Majors E. C. Beard, H. E. Rudkin, T. E. H. Taylor, and C. H. Vigors; Captains P. L. Curtis, H. C. O. Downing, J. J. B. Gaffney, R. H. Martin, and S. E. F. Moran; the Rev. B. S. Rawlinson, Messrs. S. A. L. Downing and J. H. A. Nevill.

HOW COCK-FIGHTERS WERE FOILED.

From Our Correspondent.
BALLYMENA, Monday.

Plans for what was to be one of the biggest cock-fights ever organised in Ulster, were frustrated by the activities of the police. The cock-fight was to have been held soon after dawn this morning, in a lonely mountain district between Ballymena and Larne, but during the night the police threw a network of patrols over a large part of County Antrim and searched dozens of motor cars, many of which were turned back on the occupants failing to give satisfactory replies to questions regarding their destination.

By a prearranged system of communication the police, who were in tenders, motor cars and pedal bicycles, kept in constant touch, and combed the county so effectively that the cock-fighters were frustrated at every point.

BELFAST: Ketelbey Programme, 6.30.

NORTH REGIONAL: "La Damnation de Faust," Act I. (Berlioz), 8.25.

GERMAN STATIONS: Comic Opera, "Abu Hassan" (Weber), 7.

NORTH ITALIAN: Opera, 8.30.

VIENNA: Festival Concert, 9.

Vienna has got her 100 kw. transmitter in full working order, just in time to enable listeners at large—and, more particularly, those who love the gay and friendly capital and historic city of musicians—to enjoy her week of festival. If, on Saturday last, one would like to have joined the throng listening to massed military bands in the Heldenplatz, to-night one would like equally to follow it—and, perhaps, with the aid of radio and memories or imagination may in some sort follow it to the Josephplatz. There, in the open, the Vienna Symphony Orchestra will play music of Schubert, Beethoven and "Waltz-King" Strauss, and choirs will sing part-songs by Brahms.

Schubert, who knew that part of Vienna well—as, indeed, he knew all the city and its surroundings as they were 120 years ago—will be represented by an early symphony. Beethoven will be represented by an orchestral work, which, during the two or three years following its composition, was the most popular of all his works, and ever since has been the most completely and deservedly neglected. Entitled "Wellington's Victory," or "The Battle of Vittoria," it was a sheer piece of hack work. Produced at a time when Beethoven seemed unable to address his mind squarely to his art—in point of fact, in the year 1813, which, otherwise, was almost entirely blank as regards composition of any sort. This Battle Symphony was commissioned by an enterprising concert-giver, and it served Beethoven well by carrying on his back, so to speak, his Seventh Symphony, which was included in the same programme in a succession of concerts given in the winter of that year of Europe's deliverance from Napoleon's over-reaching designs.

BERLIOZ'S FAUST.

One of the promises made by Sir Thomas Beecham when he was appealing for support for his Imperial League of Opera was that he would produce at least one of the stage works of Hector Berlioz. Through his alliance with the Covent Garden Syndicate he will be redeeming that promise in some degree to-night, when he conducts the first operatic performance in England of "La Damnation de Faust," which hitherto has been performed only as a concert work. No doubt, the production has required a great deal of effort, but there is no reason to suppose that the work will not be effective in the opera house. Berlioz was not modest in his demands, but he knew all about the theatre.

The first act of the opera will be broadcast in the B.B.C.'s Regional programme. A curious feature of this act is the Hungarian scene at the beginning, which was dragged in, regardless of warrant from Goethe's drama, for a purpose of Berlioz's own. Some time before he wrote "La Damnation de Faust," Berlioz was on a concert tour, in the course of which he was invited to conduct concerts at Budapest. His friends advised him to include in the programme something designed to flatter his Hungarian audience. The tune of the Rakoczy March, a popular Hungarian tune, was brought to his notice, and he wrote his splendid and exciting orchestral piece based on it. It had, of course, a magnificent success, and Berlioz himself saw that he had written too good a thing to leave merely as a pièce d'occasion. He determined to make a place for it in his new opera—and there it is!

Mr. H. G. Buckingham writes: "I have more working energy, and I can do more, and feel stronger and better altogether since taking Phosferine. The exposure and long hours of outdoor work caused me to have repeated chills and stiffness, with muscular pains and maddening neuralgia, and I gradually became more tired and exhausted before I began the day's work, but after a short course of Phosferine I feel a changed man, stronger, brighter, and able to tackle the stiffest job. Phosferine has set me up wonderfully, it has made my nerves steady, sleep peaceful and keeps me thoroughly fit, vigorous and well." 31, Sandbrook Road, Stoke Newington, London, N. 16.

Germany's Debts.

The spectacular victories of the Nazi Party have diverted public attention from the formidable problem of Germany's foreign debts. Since the War Germany has been borrowing money wholesale, and her creditors include most of the solvent countries of the world. Not only Britain and the United States, but also Switzerland, France, Holland and Sweden, have lent money to German borrowers. This money was lent at a time when Germany seemed to be forging ahead, and the inflation of German currency enabled German exporters to compete successfully against all comers in foreign markets. Now the entire situation has changed. The German mark has been stabilised at a figure which places it at a premium in respect of sterling. Germany's manufacturers have lost their advantage in foreign markets, and her exports have been falling steadily during the last few years. At the moment the service of Germany's foreign debt demands quarterly a sum of 250,000,000 marks, whereas her trade surplus for the first quarter of the present year was less than half that amount. Manifestly, the foreign debt cannot be served in its entirety; and a conference is being held in Berlin to devise ways and means. Some forty creditors are represented, and Dr. Schacht, President of the Reichstag, has made a long report, which contends that, without a moratorium, no progress can be made.

Although the Berlin Conference is being held in private, Dr. Schacht has announced publicly that Germany has no intention to evade her debts. Clearly, she cannot pay in foreign currencies, because her trade surplus will not warrant such a course; but she is ready to meet all her obligations in "blocked" foreign currencies, which will keep the money in Germany, and will be tantamount to a "transfer moratorium." The Reichsbank's cover for its notes has fallen already from 8.5 per cent. to 8.3 per cent. in terms of foreign currency; and Dr. Schacht declares that, in present circumstances, any attempt to pay Germany's foreign debts in full must involve inflation on a scale which would lead to "catastrophical consequences." Germany's plight to-day is a direct result of the tariff system; for the other nations of the world—and notably the United States—have protected themselves so thoroughly that her exports are unsaleable. The same condition of affairs applies, in greater or less degree, to all other countries. Creditor nations, fearing the swamping of their market with cheap, foreign goods, have erected tariff walls around themselves in an effort to give work to their own people; and at the same time they have been demanding payment of their foreign debts. The conference in Berlin represents an effort to cut the Gordian knot.

Within the next three weeks Great Britain must pay some £18,000,000 in gold to the United States. This sum could be paid easily but for the fact that the United States Government has seen fit to levy an almost prohibitive tariff on all British goods. Consequently, unless Britain pays in gold, she cannot pay at all. The remittance of such a large sum in specie to New York will do no good to anybody. There are more than 10,000,000 men and women out of work in the United States. They do not want gold; they want work and food. If His Majesty's Government now decides to meet its obligation to Washington by the export of gold bars, it will weaken its own position; but it will not strengthen that of the United States. The fact is that the whole idea of gold as the basis of prosperity has been exploded. The United States Treasury has more gold than all the rest of the world put together; yet President Roosevelt has abandoned the gold standard, because he knows full well that trade, rather than bullion, is the real criterion of a nation's prosperity. Dr. Schacht is in a like position. Germany is solvent. She can pay her debts if she is allowed to export the products of her industry with reasonable freedom; and in that hope she is prepared to issue "Mark Bonds" with the full backing of the German State. Next month the World Economic Conference in London will examine all these problems, and it will have a profound responsibility.

The Turf Fire.

Performance is following hard upon the heels of promise. Yesterday the Free State Minister for Industry and Commerce gave some particulars of the "peat scheme" which was foreshadowed by President de Valera's visit to the Midlands little more than a month ago. This year's Budget allotted a total sum of £150,000 to the scheme, of which £100,000 would be devoted to the drainage of bogs, the construction of bog roads, and similar works, while the remaining £50,000 would be spent upon the organisation and development of a peat industry. Under the heading "Organisation and Development," as we learn from Mr. Lemass's statement, is included the improvement of the present methods whereby turf is dug, marketed and utilised. The marketing scheme is simple. Local agents, who will act as middlemen between the turf-producer and the city merchants, will be approved by the Department of Industry and Commerce, and will take up duty in various centres. These men must accept an obligation to arrange for the sale only of such turf as satisfies a certain standard of quality. The scheme will give additional employment to the railway and canal companies, and the construction of bog roads, with the draining of the bogs, ought to find work for many men who are now workless in consequence of the economic war. Furthermore, if it proves to be successful, it will mean the development of large areas of our country which have been virtually barren in the past. Millions of tons of turf are taken annually from the bogs to provide fuel for rural homes; but those millions of tons are nothing in comparison with the huge reserve of peat which remains. The objections to its use on a large scale are, or have been, manifold; but it is possible that, under the influence of modern methods of production, most of them may be obliterated. Men of science from Great Britain and other nations have been turning their attention during recent years to the preparation of turf, and we understand that the Department of Industry and Commerce is interested to-day in the investigations of these experts. Any scheme for the development of the Free State's genuine resources must be applauded. Peat will not supersede coal in industrial concerns, but a large increase in its use for domestic purposes would make a substantial difference to the welfare of rural Ireland.

In the Air.

Great Britain's plan for the reduction of air armaments, though drastic, does not satisfy Geneva. It proposes "the complete abolition of bombing from the air, except for police purposes in certain outlying regions," and "the effective supervision of civil aviation to prevent its use for military purposes." When the General Committee of the Disarmament Conference discussed this plan, last Saturday, Mr. Eden, for the British delegation, explained and defended Britain's claim to use bombing for police purposes in outlying regions. In certain parts of the Empire, he said—especially in lands which Britain holds under mandate—aerial bombing is the cheapest, the most humane (often it is bloodless), and sometimes the only, way to keep turbulent peoples in order. Nevertheless, Geneva rejected the British reservation almost unanimously. Other delegates, speaking for a dozen countries—including Germany, Poland, Switzerland, China, Persia, Afghanistan and the United States—would be content with nothing less than the universal suppression of bombing from the air; and the first reading discussion of the British plan was suspended. In the meanwhile France, who has no illusions, is educating her civil population against all forms of aerial attack, which include not only bombardment, but chemical warfare. Women will play a large part in the defence, on the assumption that most of the men will be in the fighting line. Paris will be marked out in sections; trained persons will give lessons in the use of gas-masks, and a protective drill will be taught in schools and factories. France's cynicism is in sad contrast with Geneva's pacific ardour, but can we dare to say that it is not practical patriotism? At this moment, while Geneva talks and dreams, Europe is armed to the teeth; London is perilously open to attack from the air; and Powers which have not shed a single aeroplane are in enthusiastic agreement upon the further reduction of the Royal Air Force.

A Pirate Chief.

Piracy, a lost art in the Occident, flourishes to-day in the waters of the Far East. One of the most "sensational" acts of piracy which ever have been accomplished in Chinese waters was carried out last week at the expense of a 700-ton Japanese steamship, the Hoshun Maru. It was operated from "inside." Suddenly, in the midst of the voyage, twenty-three apparently peaceful travellers threw off their gowns, and revealed themselves as full-blooded desperadoes, armed, with Mausers, large swords and knives. The real interest of the event, however, lies in the personality of the pirate chief, who, according to the Dairen Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, was "polished, educated and exceptionally handsome." He, alone of the bad band, was entirely unarmed; he was "richly dressed in gorgeous, flowing, silken robes," and supervised the looting of the ship with an urbane smile and the easy grace of a Chinese gentleman. This Claude Duval of the Eastern world is an answer to the charge that, with the encroachments of materialistic philosophy, dull clothes and socialism, crime has been reduced to the vulgar level of the Chicago "racketeer," the proletarian car-bandit, and the defaulting company promoter. Perhaps, this episode will inspire a new vogue in villains. The polished highwayman who danced a saraband with his lovely victim upon Hounslow Heath has had his day; the sheik who fluttered virginal hearts only a few years ago is as dead as most people's hopes from the Derby sweepstake. Will the suave and gorgeous Oriental step from his old position as villain of the piece into the new glory of popular hero?

MARKETING BILL IN COMMONS.

REPORT STAGE CONCLUDED.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.
WESTMINSTER, Monday.

ON the report stage of the Agricultural Marketing Bill Mr. T. Williams moved an amendment with the object of amending the provision that an order regulating the importation of an agricultural product might be made during the preparation of a marketing scheme, so as to make it apply only when such a scheme was actually in force.

The amendment was defeated by 230 to 43.

Mr. D. Grenfell moved as an addition to the clause the words: "Before making an Order under this section the Board of Trade shall be satisfied that adequate supplies of the product at reasonable prices will be available."

This, he said, would save the consumer from being exploited.

The amendment was rejected by 250 to 60.

On clause three, which sets up the Market Supply Committee for advisory purposes, Mr. G. Price moved an amendment to provide that the Committee should also review the conditions of employment and wages of the agricultural labourer.

Major Elliot declared that the amendment was unnecessary, because the machinery of the Agricultural Wages Board had been extended and maintained by successive Governments.

Mr. A. Bevan asserted that the machinery of the Wages Board had been sabotaged in many parts of the country.

The amendment was negatived by 220 to 39.

The report stage was concluded.

POTATOES FROM THE FREE STATE.

QUESTION IN HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Captain Peter Macdonald (C., Isle of Wight), in the House of Commons yesterday, asked the Minister of Agriculture if his attention had been called to the decision of the Irish Free State Department of Agriculture to grant a bounty of £4 per ton on Irish Free State potatoes exported up to 30th June of this year; and whether, in view of the fact that the duty on imported potatoes into this country only amounted to £4 13s. 4d. per ton, he proposed to take any further steps to ensure that the market would not be over supplied to the prejudice of the British farmers.

Major Elliot replied that he did not anticipate, judging from past experience, that, apart from any temporary effect, the imports of new potatoes from the Irish Free State in June were likely to be sufficient to prejudice the position of British growers.

LORD ASTOR MAKES RACING PAY.

Horse racing has been a financial success for Lord Astor, one of the leading British owners.

Addressing farmers at his farm at Whitchill, Cookham, Bucks, Lord Astor said that he started his horse breeding when he was an undergraduate at Oxford, and now, after 35 years, he had a very substantial balance at the bank as a result of his racing activities. "It isn't every owner of racehorses who can say that," he added.

MARKETING OF PRODUCE.

SCHEMES IN THE NORTH.

PLEA FOR THE CONSUMERS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
BELFAST, Monday.

THE Agricultural Marketing Bill was further considered in the Northern Parliament to-day.

Lieutenant-Colonel Gordon (Unionist, East Down) moved a new clause to the effect that when a board is authorised by a scheme to employ any officers, or servants, such employment and the salary, or remuneration, of every person employed shall be determined by the board, after having been submitted to the Minister for Agriculture for his consideration.

He said that the registered producers would have to pay for the cost of the schemes, and they should know by the terms of the scheme the remuneration, if any, paid to the chairman, vice-chairman and secretary of the board. The co-operation of the producers was desirable.

Sir Basil Brooke (Unionist) opposed the amendment.

Mr. Rowley Elliott (Unionist) said that the Government should remember that the marketing schemes were for the benefit of the producer, and the chairman, vice-chairman and secretary would be paid out of what the producer should get for his produce. He asked if the bill was to benefit the producers, or to get a few highly-paid officials into jobs.

The Minister for Agriculture said that the Ministry wished to keep supervision over the expenditure of the boards. He undertook, however, to give the amendment every consideration before the bill reached the Senate.

Colonel Gordon then withdrew the amendment.

THE BRITISH SCHEME.

Colonel Gordon moved a further amendment providing that where a marketing scheme was proposed in Northern Ireland, and no similar scheme existed in Great Britain, that some safeguard should be embodied as in the British scheme—that was, that there be a poll of registered producers to decide if they wished such a marketing scheme.

The Minister for Agriculture opposed the amendment, and said that owing to the large number of small producers in Northern Ireland the cost of taking a poll might prevent a desirable scheme being considered.

Colonel Gordon withdrew the amendment.

He moved a further amendment to the effect that a board set up under a marketing scheme might appoint an executive committee.

He said that he moved a similar amendment in the Committee stage, and it was rejected by the Government, but in the British Parliament the corresponding Minister said that it was sound business sense to have such an executive committee.

The Minister agreed to accept the amendment.

The Minister for Agriculture moved a new sub-section enabling the Marketing Boards to appoint their own chairmen, provided that during a period of at least two years the chairman shall be designated by the Minister of Agriculture.

Replying to criticism, the Minister declared that the chairmen of boards need not necessarily be civil servants.

Mr. Minford (Unionist) said that farmers were looking eagerly for these schemes, and hoped that they would help; for individualism had failed to get farmers decent prices for their crops. He believed that the best men possible should be appointed chairmen of these boards.

The Minister's amendment was passed.

On the third reading stage Colonel Gordon said that he would like to make two general remarks before the bill left the House.

BETTER PRICES.

The bill, as it now stood, authorised the Minister for Agriculture to set up schemes in conjunction with the boards in England to further the prosperity of the farmers, and get better prices for agricultural produce. One underlying principle was going to make, or mar, this bill both in Northern Ireland and Great Britain. They must have confidence that the Government was going to secure a market for their produce in Great Britain. It was outside the scope of the powers of that Parliament to refer to the agreements made with the Argentine and Denmark, but they hoped that in all agreements the underlying principle would be that the home market was for the home producer. The farmers must also have confidence in those who composed the Marketing Boards.

Mr. Elliott and Mr. Minford supported the third reading. Mr. Minford expressed the hope that the market in future would not be overloaded, and pointed out that the price of pork had again fallen last week.

Mr. A. Black, K.C. (Unionist) expressed the hope that the interests of the consumers would be considered, and that no effort would be made to benefit the agricultural community at the expense of the consumer. He suggested that the Minister, before formulating a scheme, should consult the consumers' interests, and also put representatives of the consumers on the Marketing Board.

Mr. W. J. Nixon (Independent Unionist) thought that the Government, by the bill, were only bickering at the problem. The best safeguard for agriculture was protection, which would prevent dumping from Soviet Russia and elsewhere.

The bill was read a third time.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

The Minister for Agriculture moved the second reading of the Marketing of Dairy Produce Bill, which will enable creameries to purchase imported butter, mix it, and cut into rolls. He explained that during the winter months there was not sufficient milk to keep the creameries going full time, and the bill was being brought forward at the request of the creamery industry.

Mr. Nixon criticised the bill, which, he said, would enable the creameries to purchase foreign butter and work it in the creameries. It would enable creameries, he said, to purchase Soviet butter, and use it in this way.

The Minister for Agriculture said that they would only be able to purchase imported butter of a certain standard of quality. No Russian butter was of standard creamery quality. The bill was to enable the creameries to carry on during the winter months, and to keep men employed.

Mr. Nixon said that the bill was bad both for the farmers and the consumers. Anyone could go into shops now and purchase Danish or Dominion butter, and the new facilities were not necessary.

The Minister explained that the butter from the creameries would be sold as Danish or Dominion, and if blended with Ulster creamery butter would be so marked. The creameries belonged generally to the farmers, and not private individuals.

The bill was read a second time.

BUDGET DEBATE.

The debate upon the Budget was continued.

Colonel Gordon said that he thought the time was coming when they should try and reduce their expenditure, and, if necessary, recast some of their administration on more economical lines. The question of social services, he maintained, was one for the Imperial Government.

"I think we will be on right lines," he continued, "if before the next Budget we appoint a commission to go into the expenditure with a view to being able to say to the British Government we have done all we can to cut down our expenditure, and we must ask for assistance from the Imperial Parliament to maintain our social services on the same level as those in Great Britain."

He hoped that this would not be necessary, and that trade would improve, so that the burden of unemployment would be eased, but it would be a great mistake to count too much on that, and if trade did not recover quickly they should try and consider how to make ends meet.

The Budget financial statement was adopted, and the House adjourned until to-morrow.

ILLNESS OF SIR HENRY BIRKIN.

It was stated last night that there was no change in the condition of Sir Henry Birkin, the racing motorist, who is lying critically ill in a London nursing home. His temperature remains at 103.

Sir Henry has been seriously ill for some days from blood poisoning.

LONDON LETTER.

THE FOUR-POWER PACT.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

While it was accepted generally in official circles here to-day that virtual agreement had been reached between Great Britain and France in regard to the Four Power Pact, no details were forthcoming, and there was, apparently, a desire to refrain from comment on the nature of the changes made in the text. Since Italy and Germany have acquiesced, it is expected that the initialling of the Pact will take place without any great delay. The Four Power Pact, which arose out of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's visit to Signor Mussolini in Rome, has as its main feature a guarantee of European peace for ten years.

The Land Tax.

The meeting of Conservative members, which will be attended by Mr. Stanley Baldwin to-morrow, promises to be somewhat lively; for he must tell his colleagues that the Government is unanimous that there shall be no repeal of the land tax at present. It is thought that this decision will be accepted, but great efforts will be made to secure a promise that the tax shall be repealed next year. The concession has been half promised already, but during the past few days there has been a change owing to the insistence of the Prime Minister and other members of the Cabinet that there shall be no yielding to the Conservative demand. The remarkable thing about the tax is that not only Mr. Macdonald, with his Liberal and Labour associates in the Cabinet, wish to retain the land tax on the Statute Book, but Mr. Baldwin also is said to be strongly in favour of this course, though at one time he regarded the tax as a monstrous injustice.

Russian Goods.

The revelation that enormous quantities of Russian foodstuffs and goods continue to enter this country, in spite of the embargo, was discussed widely in parliamentary circles to-day, and it is not unlikely that representations will be made to the Board of Trade on the point. It has been remarked that the embargo on Russian imports is really a mere form of words, since it covers so few things. It is due to expire in July, when the Economic Conference will be sitting, and the Soviet Government expects that, in view of the circumstances of that time, the British Government will relax the ban, and possibly will drop it altogether. The British Government is unlikely to take any such step, which certainly would cause trouble in the country. Deep resentment is expressed at the fact that Messrs. Macdonald and Thornton are still held prisoners in Moscow, and, if the Government attempts to give up the embargo even in its present modified form, there will be a public outcry.

The King's Activities.

Since the King was unable to be present at this morning's Levée it scarcely is expected that he will take the principal part in the trooping of the Colour on Saturday. To-day it was suggested that the Prince of Wales would take his place, and, after the trooping of the colour, would ride at the head of the Guards along the Mall to Buckingham Palace, where the salute will be taken. There are two reasons why the King will not be present. The first is that the wearing of full-dress uniform still is considered undesirable, and the other is that His Majesty has not had an opportunity to ride this year. He usually rides in Rotten Row for several days before the ceremony on the Horse Guards' Parade. It is also uncertain whether the King will be at every day's racing at Epsom, though the present intention is that Their Majesties, with the other members of the Royal Family, shall be at Epsom for the Derby, and probably for the Oaks. The King's attendance, however, will depend upon the weather.

Wave-lengths.

A series of discussions which is taking place at the Radio Conference at Geneva is expected to have a marked effect on British listeners; for radio-listening will become an entirely different affair if some decisions that are now being made are implemented. There has been great criticism of the British system on the point that the B.B.C. possesses no fewer than ten different wave-lengths, and it has been argued that full advantage of this concession has not been taken for the benefit of British listeners in the matter of providing true alternative programmes—the ground on which it was granted. Protesting nations urged that the interference of one European broadcast with another was due to the fact that so many wave-lengths are employed, with the result that the separating channel must be so small as nine kilocycles. In the end it was advocated that at least four wave-lengths should be taken away from this country. A compromise was understood to have been reached, and by an arrangement four of the British stations will share wave-lengths with other countries. It is said that these changes will affect the Midland Regional, London Regional and Scottish National.

The Bank Rate.

The 2 per cent. Bank rate which now prevails at the Bank of England is approaching its anniversary; for it began at the end of last June. Britain is one of two countries with this low rate: the other is Switzerland, while France and the United States each have a 2½ per cent. rate. A great deal of good work has been done by this low bank rate. Since its inception conversions of loans have brought the Government annual interest savings of about £30,000,000, while commerce and industry have been enabled to cut down interest on loan capital by several millions yearly. It is possible, however, that before very long there will be a change towards higher rates.

Mixed Marriages.

Marriages between Protestants and Roman Catholics—or, as they are generally called, mixed marriages—are becoming so common that Mr. F. W. Gilpin intends to raise the question at the forthcoming summer session of the National Assembly. He will move that the Assembly, concerned at the painful consequences which so frequently result from mixed marriages between members of the English Church and members of the Roman Church, urges upon the clergy the duty of educating and warning their parishioners in regard to the dangers attendant upon such marriages, and at the same time of extending practical sympathy and help, as well as spiritual guidance, to those who sometimes, in ignorance or lack of counsel, have contracted such marriages.

Surrendered Firearms.

Since Scotland Yard invited owners of firearms to surrender them to the police, nearly 1,500 weapons have been handed in at police stations in the Metropolitan Area, and they are still being received. Quite a number are of Service pattern, and it is presumed that these will be handed over to the War Office, in order that they may be overhauled at Woolwich Arsenal before they are stored for issue. The majority of the weapons, however, are of an obsolete type, and since they have neither use nor value it is probable that their destruction will be ordered, and that they will be disposed of as scrap metal.

A large number of shops in many parts of Paris, and in other cities, closed their doors between the hours of two and five p.m. yesterday as a silent protest against what they regard as excessive taxation.

DRAW FOR THE DERBY SWEEPSTAKE.

NINETEEN PRIZE UNITS FOR DISTRIBUTION.

LORD POWERSCOURT ON FUTURE SCHEMES.

LEGISLATION TO EXTEND THE SWEEPSTAKES.

BY OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

THE smallest "sweep" since the Derby of 1931. This was what we learnt yesterday at the Plaza, when Mr. Jack O'Sheehan opened his budget, as the parliamentarians would say, before the drum began to roll forth the prizes for the 1933 Derby sweepstake draw.

There are nineteen prize units in the present sweepstake, as there were at the Grand National draw just two months ago; but the total prize fund has fallen by about £46,000, while the difference between this year's Derby prize fund and last year's Derby prize fund is nearly a million pounds. Here are the comparative figures (excluding sellers' prizes):—

Derby, 1932.	Grand National, 1933.	Derby, 1933.
£2,804,552.	£1,987,730	£1,941,846

Mr. O'Sheehan broke the news in a quiet matter-of-fact tone, which for the moment hid from us the underlying significance of the figures. Then, as their import sank into our minds, there came a low murmur of surprise in the big gathering which almost filled the hall.

GAY SCENE AT THE PLAZA.

It made us ponder and see the force of the suggestion which had come a few minutes before from Alderman Byrne, T.D., the Lord Mayor of Dublin, during the preliminary speeches which always precede an Irish sweepstake draw. He had proposed that part of the proceeds of the event might be devoted to supporting medical research, not only in the Free State, but in other countries too.

Have you ever taken your seat at the Plaza, those of you who visit the draw, during the half an hour or so before the distribution of prizes begins; before even the speeches start? If not, you have never experienced the complete sensation which comes of watching so elaborately-staged an event. As one who has no share in the "sweep," and, therefore, no hope from the drum, I think of the draw in terms of a theatrical first-night, and to miss the preliminaries would be akin to missing the anticipatory tension which always precedes the rising of the curtain.

MOST ARTISTIC SETTING.

The simile is not inappropriate. There is the same indefinable air of hum and bustle, with a murmuring expectant audience, while the overture consists of stirring airs from the magnificent Army band which Lieutenant Doyle conducts. The production itself is on the most modern—not to say futuristic—lines; one of those new-style plays in which the audience are made to feel that they are part of the cast.

The scenery runs right around the hall in a brilliantly-toned effect which we know will be in keeping with the company on the stage. The settings of the present draw, I think, are the most artistic that the Plaza has yet seen.

On previous occasions I have often felt that the wall decorations are too garish in their colourings, and deficient in meaning. That criticism does not apply to the old-time Derby Day paintings which surround the walls this week. They are almost as crowded with incident as the famous picture of Frith's on the same subject.

THE ROAD TO THE COURSE.

One side of the hall depicts the Epsom road, with its throng of traffic all heading for the Downs. The picturesque "Epsom Express," with its spirited steeds, rattles along among the lines of vehicles, which range from aristocratic carriages down to the humble coster's cart. One can imagine the sound of a thousand hooves. To make the scene complete there is a horse of another kind in the "hobby horse" bicycle of the period, propelled by the lanky pantalooned legs of a less easily-travelling racegoer.

Coming to the course, our eyes meet the little crowd whose attention is divided between the Punch and Judy show and the sword-swallower. Away on the other side of the hall are dark-eyed gypsies, encamped with their caravans; costers, grand ladies; in fact, all that great range of humanity which makes a Derby crowd, even in these far less picturesque days.

About the figures there is a grotesque air, which makes one think of Hogarth and of the Dickens illustrators; but they have an individuality of their own.

The final preliminaries were completed. Nurses placed the last of the counterfoils in the drum. A procession of pretty girls passed round the hall wearing coster costumes, shimmering with the glint of mother-of-pearl. The speeches came, and the announcement of the proceeds and allocation. Then our entire sensation changed; we no longer felt we were in a theatre, but we wanted to rise in our seats and shout, "They're off!"

The great drum, in its coat of glossy green, shone like a sunny sward. Between the drum and ourselves the artist had placed a row of heads, so that we felt we were at the back of a crowd. Over the drum were the figures of horses, their legs stretched in a gallop; but it was the drum, and not they, which began to move. It was on the drum, and not on them that all hopes were centred.

Where the prizes went I cannot say, except that they came out in bewildering variety, scattering wealth to all parts of the world.

NEW SWEEPSTAKE LEGISLATION.

An interesting feature of the speech of Lord Powerscourt, Chairman of the Hospitals' Committee, was his reference to the new sweepstake legislation now before the Dail. "In view of certain statements which have been circulated, a short explanation is due to the public," he began.

"The last Government," continued Lord Powerscourt, "gave us a licence for the running of sweepstakes to pay off the debts, re-equip and, if possible, endow the fifty-three hospitals of the country. That licence was to have terminated in June of next year.

"The present Government have a bill now before the Dail extending indefinitely the period of sweepstakes. The Government is also setting up a commission to inquire into and provide for certain other enterprises which are of a curative nature for the sick poor. The fifty-three hospitals will continue to benefit from the sweepstakes, and, therefore, I commit to the support of the people the principle of the sweepstakes, which are doing very valuable work for the sick poor of the country."

Urging subscribers to send in their money and counterfoils early, Lord Powerscourt disclosed that up to a month ago the promoters "thought that the sweep had been forgotten," so slow were the counterfoils in coming in. Three days before the closing date, however, "the storm broke."

Thanks to the Press, subscribers and promoters were expressed by the Lord Mayor of Dublin, who referred to the amount of employment which the sweepstakes gave and to the work they had done for the hospitals.

"I think the time has arrived," he said, "for the building up of an international research fund, whether in the direction of cancer or of tuberculosis."

Colonel Broy, Chief Commissioner of the Civic Guard, who supervised the draw, also made a speech in English and Irish, in which he praised the organisation of the sweepstakes.

IRELAND'S SHARE OF THE "HORSES."

IRISH ticket-holders in sixteen counties, who drew "horses" in the sweepstake yesterday, are assured of gaining £1,521 14s. 9d. apiece by their luck. Those whose horses are still left in the race are full of hope that £30,000 will come their way. The fortunate few are:—

INDIA AND THE EMPIRE.

CRITICISMS BY LORD LLOYD.

INDIAN SECRETARY'S ATTACK.

BOMBAY CORPORATION'S ANTI-BRITISH ORDER.

LORD LLOYD criticised the Government's Indian proposals in a speech which he delivered at a meeting of the Conservative India Committee, held at the House of Commons last night.

He said that out of the sea of loose talk about pledges, one fact emerged, and it was that we were pledged by the Act of 1919 to making an honest experiment in that form of government, but that in order to avoid disaster, the experiment had to be made gradually and in progressive and carefully checked stages. To that only in respect of self-government were we pledged, and his view had recently been confirmed by the Secretary of State, when he said that past pledges had left us entirely free as to the time and manner of any advance.

His view was that if they did what was right, and sincerely endeavoured to find a solution which carried India far forward on the path of self-government, while at the same time not seriously jeopardising the welfare of her peoples, they would not, in the long run, have to face any but factious opposition, and factious opposition they would have to face whatever they did short of leaving India.

SURRENDER.

The Government might carry their policy. If they did, the responsibility for what happened—for the break up of a great Empire and the abandonment of splendid duties—would be heavy on the Conservative Party.

He and his friends, at least, however few they might be, would continue with all the force at their command to plead for reconsideration before it was too late.

At question time in the House Sir W. Davison (Conservative) asked the Secretary for India whether, in view of the action of the Bombay Corporation requiring its contractors to use no article manufactured in the British Empire unless it could not be obtained elsewhere, the Government of India would secure that in case of any Government grants to local authorities, a condition would be attached that there should be no discrimination against goods manufactured in the British Empire.

Sir S. Hoare said that it would be out of the question to insist upon a condition of this sort. When Lord Lloyd stated in public a few days ago that this resolution was passed recently he must have forgotten that it was passed when he was Governor of Bombay. All the records failed to show that Lord Lloyd then took any action in the matter.

He understood that considerations of price and quality were still decisive to the Bombay Corporation in placing their contracts.

Sir W. Davison—Are not the Government proposals with regard to the new Constitution for India based on the assumption of partnership in a common enterprise, and does he think that the action of the Bombay Corporation is very hopeful in this regard?

Sir S. Hoare—I think, on the whole, it is better to leave things as they are. The Bombay Corporation has, I understand, not acted on this resolution, and short of passing an Act abrogating the powers of the Corporation I fail to see what can be done.

GANDHI BREAKS HIS FAST.

THE UNTOUCHABLES' CAUSE.

With sunken eyes and emaciated cheeks, arms as thin as sticks and protruding shoulder blades, Mr. Gandhi, with a trembling hand, took half a glass of fruit juice shortly after noon at Poona yesterday, and thus ended his twenty-one days' fast.

"In God's name I began my fast, and in God's name I ended it," he said. "My faith is not less, but more, on this occasion, and I sing the glory of God. I am glad the Harijans (Untouchables) are here with us. I do not know what work God expects from me now; but whatever it may be, I know He will give me strength for it."

Mrs. Gandhi, in a statement, says that she is deeply grateful that God has heard the prayers of the nation, and she will be more grateful still when the Harijans are admitted to the fuller life of Hindu society.

For the first time in East African history (says a Reuter message from Nairobi) Indian Untouchables were permitted to enter a select Nairobi Hindu temple. Although some of the trustees opposed the entry the majority gave their consent. There was no demonstration.

A further step to carry out Mr. Gandhi's wishes was the organisation of a luncheon at the Hindu institution, at which several Hindu leaders entertained a number of Untouchables.

COUNTY MEATH BOY HERO.

MEMORIAL CERTIFICATE AND GRANT TO PARENTS.

The Carnegie Hero Fund trustees, at Dunfermline yesterday, awarded a memorial certificate and a grant of £25 for funeral expenses to the parents of Patrick McCullen (9), Hartstown, County Meath, who lost his life while attempting to rescue a younger brother from drowning in a pond at Hartstown. The younger boy was rescued by a man.

MUSSOLINI RECEIVES MR. DE VALERA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Monday.

Signor Mussolini received Mr. de Valera, President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State, to-day.

Herr Goebbels, the Reich Minister of Propaganda, also had a long conversation with Signor Mussolini this morning.

BRITAIN CUTS CHILLED MEAT IMPORTS.

Major Elliott, British Minister of Agriculture, announced yesterday that arrangements had been made to reduce the amount of chilled meat imported into the United Kingdom in the first part of the quarter ending 30th September next by 10 per cent. below the maximum agreed to at the Ottawa Conference.

FARMER ROBBED.

The house of William Punch, farmer, Mungret, Co. Limerick, was broken into on Sunday night while the family were absent. It is reported that a sum of £160 was taken. So far no arrests have been made.

THE OUSTING OF COAL.

GOVERNMENT'S PEAT SCHEME.

STATEMENT BY MR. LEMASS.

MR. SEAN LEMASS, Free State Minister for Industry and Commerce, yesterday outlined to newspaper representatives the Government's plans regarding the development of peat in the Free State.

The preliminary steps have already been taken, he said, and the necessary measures to give effect to the proposals were now in train. It is hoped to bring the scheme into operation in certain areas in the near future. A list of these areas will be announced in the course of a few days. The scheme will, it is hoped, be eventually extended to a large number of areas, but a beginning must be made somewhere. In these areas local agents, who will act as middlemen between the producers and the merchants in the towns and cities, will be approved by the Department of Industry and Commerce.

Approval merely involves the acceptance by these agents of an obligation to handle standard quality peat only. The Department will furnish a list of approved agents to coal merchants, who will be requested to order supplies through them. It is not intended to prevent others engaging in the peat trade. On the contrary, all persons will be free to do so, but the approval of an agent by the Department of Industry and Commerce will confer obvious advantages.

THE PRICES.

The approved agents will purchase the standard peat from the producers and consign it to the merchants who have ordered supplies, receiving a commission on each ton handled.

It is expected that a price of from 10s. to 10s. 6d. per ton will be paid to the peat producers.

The peat will be packed in sacks to facilitate transport. Very favourable transport charges are being conceded by the Great Southern Railways Company.

It is not possible to state at what price peat will be available to consumers. There will not be a fixed price; each merchant will, presumably, announce his own price. It is hoped, for example, to get peat delivered in Dublin to merchants at about 18s. per ton. To this will be added the merchants' handling costs and profits, and also the cost of delivery to consumers where desired. These costs should not amount to more than a few shillings per ton.

WIDENING THE MARKET.

A standard of quality for peat to be handled under the scheme will be announced. It will be so fixed as to ensure that fuel of good quality will be available, and, having regard to the probable price, will be very attractive as a substitute for coal.

At a later stage an attempt may be made to organise peat-producers in co-operative societies, but it is not intended to delay the bringing of the scheme into operation in this year to enable this to be done, except where such delays may not arise.

It is hoped that a substantial addition to the available market for peat will result from this scheme. At the present time peat is consumed in the Saorstat to the extent of about four million tons per year. The Government intends to embark on an extensive publicity and advertising campaign to popularise the use of peat for household purposes as soon as merchants in the principal centres have supplies in store.

Certain difficulties will arise in bringing into the scheme peat-producing areas which are distanced a long way from the main centres of consumption, but these difficulties are being examined with a view to overcoming them.

PROPOSALS TO BE DEBATED.

The whole question of the development of peat and turf will be the subject of a discussion in the Dail when the Government's proposals for the allocation of certain funds for the purpose are submitted to the House. In his Budget speech Mr. MacEntee, Minister for Finance, indicated that it is intended to devote £100,000 for the drainage of bogs, the construction of bog roads and works of a similar character. It is also proposed to set aside £50,000 for the organisation and development of the peat industry, with the special object of improving the methods of winning, marketing and utilising turf.

Apart from this and its efforts to create a market, the Government, Mr. Lemass stated, does not intend to intervene. It is hoped that the price to the consumer will be maintained through competition at a reasonable rate.

DROWNED IN DUN LAOGHAIRE HARBOUR.

FIVE YEARS OLD BOY'S FATAL PLAYING.

While playing on the steps of the East Pier of Kingstown Harbour last evening a five years old boy, named William Patrick Kelly, living at 17 Desmond avenue, fell into the water when attempting to reach a floating stick.

His companion, Patrick Dalton, of 9 Desmond avenue, who is aged only six, at once ran home to inform his mother, and none of the many people in the vicinity apparently saw the accident.

A neighbour, John Cooper, of 41 Desmond avenue, and William Cooper, of 17 Avoca square, put off in a boat when they heard of the accident, and found the body of the little boy floating in the water.

Artificial respiration failed to revive him.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY INTERRUPTED.

TWO MEN EJECTED FROM THE GALLERY.

While the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, Edinburgh, was discussing yesterday the report on central organisation, there was an interruption from the public gallery.

Two young men were seated in the gallery a short distance from each other when, in the middle of the debate, one shouted a protest that the things which were being discussed were of no importance to the working classes. He was continuing to interrupt when he was seized by a doorkeeper.

The other man shouted: "Down with the National Government." Both of the interrupters were quickly ejected, and the debate was resumed.

U.S. TREASURER NOT TO RESIGN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

Mr. William Woodin, United States Secretary of the Treasury, has authorised a statement denying that he intends to resign in consequence of the disclosures made in the Senate inquiry into the affairs of Messrs. J. P. Morgan and Company.

He points out that his transactions with the firm occurred before he took office.

BISHOP AND A "GRAVE MENACE."

SECRET BODIES IN IRELAND.

OATH ADMINISTERED TO RECRUITS.

THE UNLAWFULNESS OF COMMUNISM.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

LISTOWEL, Monday.

WHEN confirming 360 children at Listowel to-day, the Most Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Bishop of Kerry, said that at present they were faced with a very grave menace. To-day individuals and an organisation were endeavouring to inveigle boys to join it, and for that purpose they had embarked on a recruiting campaign. Not only were they urging boys to join, but he understood that in many cases they were administering an oath to bind their recruits.

I want to tell you, continued Dr. O'Brien, that any oath of that kind is not binding. It is, first of all, a grievous sin to take it, and it is a sin to keep it. The Church warns you solemnly against unlawful oaths, and any such oath as that to which I have referred is unlawful. It is a sin to take it and another sin to keep it.

TEACHING OF THE CHURCH.

It is hardly necessary for me to tell you that the organisation which is carrying out this campaign is the I.R.A., a body which opposes the authority of the lawfully constituted Government of the State, and is endeavouring to discredit the teaching of the Church. In recent times it has become a common occurrence to refuse to recognise the authority of the Courts, though these Courts have been set up by a Government which was elected to office by the votes of the majority of the people. Thus, those persons are guilty of a serious breach of the law of God, because, as a text from St. Paul says, he who resists the higher power resists the ordinance of God and earns damnation for himself.

Those persons are by their actions sinning against the Fourth Commandment, which not only orders us to obey our parents, but to obey our superiors and the lawfully constituted Government of the country. But the Irish Republican Army has gone further, and has endeavoured to discredit the teaching of the Church, her bishops and priests. For some time past the bishops have found it necessary in various parts of the country to warn the young people against having anything to do with this organisation, and for doing so we hear it said that the bishops are against freedom and against the movement which is endeavouring to achieve freedom, but that is not so. The bishops and priests consider it their duty to warn the people against an organisation which is opposed to the rightful Government of the State.

THE COMMUNISTS.

There is also another danger. Individuals are going about the country trying to organise a Communist Party. No Catholic can have anything to do with such an organisation and remain within the Church. It is against the lawful authority of the country and against the teaching of Christ. It endeavours to make the people believe that they are no more than animals, that they have no souls. That is the teaching of Moscow, to which place some of the leaders went from this country to learn the methods of organising revolution.

Some of those men are prominent leaders in the I.R.A., and only recently the Irish Republican Army gave public expression to a policy which is the Communist policy. Therefore, if the I.R.A. is not the Communist organisation in this country, it is certainly suspect.

In conclusion, the Bishop advised the boys of the country to refuse to join any such army or organisation as those to which he had referred. They should not have anything to do with bodies which drilled and armed. That organisation only aimed at revolution and civil war. The only army which they should join was the army of Christ, in which he would that day enrol them.

An impressive scene was subsequently witnessed in the square when Dr. O'Brien blessed the colours for the local units of the Catholic Boy Scouts.

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

POLICE BOMBING.

In a leading article The Times to-day states:—In the chapter on air armaments which was reached at the Disarmament Conference last week the British Draft Convention proposes in its opening article the complete abolition of bombing from the air (except for police purposes in certain outlying regions). The sentence in parentheses has found no support outside the British delegation. On the contrary, it was attacked from many quarters with more than the usual frankness, and even Mr. Eden's able reply failed to silence the critics. Unless fresh instructions are sent to the British delegation from London and the conversations now proceeding produce some unexpected compromise, the Disarmament Conference is likely to be once more immobilised in deadlock.

After citing the arguments advanced by Mr. Eden, The Times proceeds: Yet when the fullest weight has been given to all these arguments—and to the special plea of the Iraq Government, whose interests the British Government always have in mind, that the tranquillity of their country cannot be assured without the use of bombs—the question remains whether the general abolition of bombing is to be prevented because of its value to police operations which have, after all, been carried out with success by other methods for centuries. If it were only a matter of maintaining a few bombers in such distant places as Iraq and the Indian frontier, then it is possible that other countries would make no serious objection. But how, if that local concession were made, would it be possible to withhold the same right from Italy and France, for instance, to maintain bombing squadrons for use in the mountains of North Africa; and Africa is separated from Europe only by the Mediterranean, which could be crossed by bombing 'planes in the first hours of a European crisis.

At the present time there is a strong movement within the Disarmament Conference for the total abolition of military aviation, to which is attached the essential corollary that a system of effective supervision shall be devised to prevent civil aviation from being misused for military purposes. British public opinion will not be satisfied that the work of the Disarmament Conference should be held up on account of a British claim to use the air bomb, however well justified have been the method and the purpose of its employment hitherto.

A verdict of "Death due to heart failure following congestion of the lungs," was returned at an inquest which was held in the Dublin Morgue yesterday by the Acting Coroner, Dr. Oswald Murphy, on the body of Alexander Stewart (70), who was found dead in his house, 30 Swords street, Dublin, last Friday.

GERMANY AND CREDITORS.

FACING FINANCIAL CRISIS.

REFLEX OF DWINDLING TRADE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Monday.

DR. SCHACHT, the Reichsbank President, to-day made a long report on the problem of Germany's foreign debt service to forty British, United States and other foreign bankers, representing her creditors.

The meeting had been specially called in view of the growing scarcity of foreign currencies available for debt payments and the dwindling gold reserves.

Big British interests are at stake. After receiving an abundance of statistical material, mostly of a confidential nature, for examination, the foreign delegates adjourned their deliberations, which are being held in private.

Dr. Schacht said that the stand-still agreements were no solution of the crisis in Germany, and had merely postponed the day of reckoning.

It is believed that Germany will offer to pay her foreign creditors with "blocked foreign currencies," which means that the money must be kept in Germany. This would be, in fact, tantamount to a transfer moratorium.

At the same time Germany is expected to ask that the rates of interest on her loans be reduced, on the ground that they are at present excessive.

DECLINING GOLD STOCKS.

There were suggestions earlier that the calling of to-day's meeting portended the early declaration of a transfer moratorium for Germany's foreign debt service. This was denied by Dr. Schacht.

"No moratorium for the payment in marks will be demanded," he added. "The sole problem is the converting of the mark into foreign currencies, owing to the lack of the latter resulting from the continual decline in our foreign trade."

It has been pointed out in other quarters in Berlin that whereas the present debt service demands quarterly a sum of 250,000,000 marks, the country's foreign trade surplus in the first quarter of this year was less than half that amount.

On the other hand, the decline in Germany's foreign trade seems to be partly due to the various measures taken by the German Government to protect German industries, these, in return, having provoked reprisals on the part of other countries.

The Reichsbank's note cover, according to the latest return, is only 8.3 per cent., against 8.5 per cent. in the previous return, and a normal legal minimum of 40 per cent.

NAZI GOVERNMENT FOR DANZIG.

ATTITUDE TO JEWS AND TREATIES.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

DANZIG, Monday.

The sign of the Swastika is all triumphant in the Free City of Danzig, and within four weeks a Nazi Government will be formed. It is now officially declared that the Nazis will have 38 out of 72 seats in the new Volkstag, as compared with 12 in the last House.

The final figures for the other parties, compared with their numbers in the last House, are:—Government, 4 (11); Socialists, 13 (19); Communists, 5 (7); Centre Party, 10 (11); Poles, 2 (2); other parties, none (10). The Nazis polled 107,335, as compared with 32,466 in the last election.

Dr. Hermann Rauschning, the prospective Nazi President of the Danzig Senate (Government) told Pressmen in Berlin to-day that no anti-Jewish measures would be taken by the new Government. "Jewry and problems of this kind play no part in the Free City," he said.

Indicating that the new Administration would take all measures to ensure the sanctity of treaties, he declared that all means adopted by it to obtain its end would be strictly legal. With the German National and Centre Parties, the Nazis would be able to obtain a two-thirds majority, which would suffice for all the proposed new measures.

"While clinging to the treaties and the Constitution, we hope ultimately to find a new form of community life and economic life," he said.

As to relations with Poland, he said:—"The National Socialists are ready to work out with Poland a general settlement of all questions at issue, but this must be based on reciprocity. Readiness for peace does not mean readiness to be oppressed. Inalienable rights can in no case be sacrificed."

TO REVIVE WHEELS OF INDUSTRY.

VITAL NEED FOR MORE ADVERTISING.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

VIENNA, Monday.

An appeal for the intelligent use of advertising to re-start the wheels of a world whose inhabitants "live in an age of plenty but are in the midst of want," was made by Lord Luke of Pavenham, the leader of the British delegation, in his speech before the Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce, which opened here to-day.

Lord Luke said that the present organisation of distribution had only been made possible by the development of new methods, and of those the most important was advertising.

The difficulty to-day was that the manufacturer could not advertise without first getting his goods stocked, and the retailer refused to stock goods until a demand had been created by advertising. This, on the face of it, looked like a vicious circle, but by securing the retailers' good-will with the promise of advertising, and a judicious use of the most up-to-date methods, it would be possible to get the goods stocked and into the hands of the consumers.

TO-DAY IN THE DAIL.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

The business of the Dail to-day will be almost exclusively concerned with the report stage of the Budget resolutions. The debate will probably extend over to-morrow as well.

There are about a dozen questions on the Order Paper. Several of them in the name of Mr. P. McGilligan (Cumann na nGaedheal, National University) are addressed to the Minister for Finance requesting certain information regarding the grants of bounties and subsidies. In one Mr. McGilligan asks for information as to how the total sum of £2,450,000 estimated for bounties in the current financial year has been arrived at.

COUNTY DUBLIN RATES.

HIGH COURT APPLICATION.

THE ORDER OF MANDAMUS.

CAUSE SHOWN BY COUNCILLORS.

IN the High Court, Dublin, before Mr. Justice Sullivan, Mr. Justice Hanna, and Mr. Justice O'Byrne, yesterday, an application was made on behalf of the Free State Minister for Local Government and Public Health to have made absolute a conditional order of mandamus directed to the Dublin County Council to compel them to levy the rate for the current year. The conditional order was granted by Mr. Justice Hanna on the 5th inst.

The following members of the Council who voted against the striking of the rate, and were made special defendants, were also served with the order:—Patrick Belton, T.D.; Richard Blake, Henry M. Dardis, Thomas Delaney, John P. Dooge, John Dowling, James T. Ennis, John P. McCabe, William Rollins and Charles G. Warner.

The Attorney-General, Mr. James Geoghegan, K.C.; and Mr. William Black (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the Minister for Local Government; Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C.; Mr. Gearoid O'Sullivan, and Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Mr. Patrick F. O'Reilly) for seven special defendants (Messrs. Patrick Belton, T.D.; J. P. McCabe, Richard Blake, Thomas Delaney, John P. Dooge, John Dowling, William Rollins and Charles G. Warner); Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C.; Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., and Mr. Art. O'Connor (instructed by Mr. Thomas Early) appeared for the Dublin County Council; and Mr. Charles S. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Mr. Gerard L. McGowan) for Messrs. Dardis and Ennis (special defendants).

COUNCIL'S DUTY.

Mr. Shiels, Chairman of the County Council, was present in Court; as were also several of the special defendants.

The Attorney-General said that cause had been shown by a number of special defendants, but he asked the Court, notwithstanding the cause shown, to make the order absolute.

Counsel explained that legislation imposed on the County Council the duty of finding a fund to supply the various services committed to their charge. Section 7 of the Local Government Act of 1927 imposed this duty, and the Public Bodies Order laid down the steps to be followed. It was unnecessary to stress the importance of the duty cast on the Council to approach the matter in a business-like way at the earliest point in the financial year. The Dublin County Council had always had regard to the provisions of the Statute, and this year, on the 27th March, they actually had before them the estimates as approved by the Finance Committee, and they adopted and approved the estimates, thus having reached a clear determination regarding the exact amount which ought to be found for the necessary services. They proceeded no further, and the present application to the Court was simply that the County Council, having made themselves aware, through the machinery at their disposal of the financial requirements should take the next step—namely, to act in accordance with the law and determine the rate.

AGRICULTURAL GRANT.

The Legislature had provided certain relief for agricultural ratepayers, the amount of which was determined under various Statutes of the Local Government Act, and provision was made by the Oireachtas whereby supplementary grants might be available. The duty of the Council to determine the rate was in no way affected by the fact that the Legislature had stepped in and provided certain moneys in relief of that section of ratepayers who were occupiers of agricultural lands. The Council had all the materials before them, and they declined to determine the rate, and by resolution had shown unwillingness to comply with the duties imposed on them by law. The affidavits put in showing cause justified their action by reason of the failure of the Minister for Local Government to intimate to them that the Oireachtas this year would provide a sum in relief of the agricultural ratepayers equivalent to the sum paid last year, and they made the complaint that until the 9th March they were not aware of what amount of relief they could expect for the rated occupiers of agricultural land during the current year.

CAPACITY TO PAY.

When, on the 27th March, the County Council approved the estimates, they knew the amount required to meet the expenditure for the coming financial year, and that almost automatically enabled them to determine the rate. The Council, however, instead of striking the rate, appealed to the Minister and to the Executive Council to make an increased agricultural grant available on account of the position of the occupiers of agricultural land. For the year ended 31st March, 1932, they had received a grant of £71,212; while the amount allocated to them this year was £55,657.

The Council suggested that this difference of about £16,000 would lead to a breakdown in the financial machinery, but they gave no evidence in support of that statement, nor did they allude to the fact that there were a great many ratepayers who received no benefit whatever from the agricultural grant, and whose capacity to pay would not be affected by any decrease in its amount.

The Minister, in a circular of the 9th March, agreed to a reasonable extension of time for the striking of a rate, but said that, when striking it, Councils should provide fully for the needs of their counties. He added that if they did not do so he would not be prepared to advise the Government to proceed with the grant allocation.

That circular was considered by the Dublin County Council at their meeting on the 13th March, but, instead of striking the rate, they postponed action. They expressed disappointment at the reduction in the grant, and asked for a reconsideration of the allocation. Further, they asked that the grant should be allocated on a flat rate, and not on the basis set out in the circular, by which occupiers were to get the full relief on a special valuation basis.

On the 20th March the Local Government Department again wrote, telling the Council that it was incumbent on them to proceed forthwith with the striking of the rate. On the 27th March, after having, as stated, already approved the estimates, the Council again postponed action, and a similar decision was taken at a special meeting on the 10th April. A motion to strike the rate was then defeated by 10 votes to 8, and, on the same vote, an amendment was passed asking the Executive Council to make moneys from the Suspense Account available for the relief of rates on agricultural land.

MINISTER'S ORDER.

The Attorney-General submitted that that was a definite refusal to determine the rate. On the 18th April the Council were notified that the Executive Council had referred the matter to the Minister for Local Government, and the latter wrote pointing out the extent of the reliefs granted to occupiers of agricultural land in the matter of land annuities and grants, and telling the Council that there was no reason for any further delay in the striking of the rate. On the 24th April, at a special meeting of the Council, a motion to comply with the Minister's order was lost by 11 votes to 7, but, despite that, the Minister on the 26th April gave the Council another opportunity to discharge their legal obligation.

In a letter of that date the Minister told them it was most important that they should ensure that there would be no interruption of the civic services, and that, if they persisted in their refusal, it would be his duty to take steps to ensure that they would strike a rate. When their position had thus been made abundantly clear, the Council again met on the 1st May, and, by 10 votes to 8, again purported to postpone the striking of the rate, thus proving that a majority had made up their minds not to discharge their statutory duty. A conditional order of mandamus was obtained against them on the 5th May, but, even after that, the majority persisted in their attitude, and on the 11th May decided to show cause against the order being made absolute.

"SERIOUS DEPRESSION."

The Attorney-General read the affidavits made in the case. The special defendants, he said, had made an affidavit as a committee authorised to show cause on behalf of the County Council, but there was special appearance for them by counsel.

Mr. Costello said that he represented the County Council to show cause, and the special defendants were concerned only with the question of costs.

Mr. Rice said that, on behalf of eight special defendants, he was entitled to rely on the facts of the case.

In an affidavit made by Messrs. Belton, Blake, Dardis, Dooge and Warner, they said that they were "bound to have regard to the financial position of the county and of the ratepayers, and of their ability to provide for the county services." The estimates received from subsidiary bodies showed very large increases over the year 1932-33, although those bodies had endeavoured to keep them as low as possible. The County Council, in examining and adopting the estimates, had acted in the same spirit, because the ratepayers, and more especially those engaged in agriculture, were suffering from "the serious prevailing depression consequent on the disorganisation of agriculture," and many were unable to meet their obligations. In adopting the estimates, the County Council acted in the belief that the agricultural grant of £55,657 paid last year would again be forthcoming.

The Attorney-General said that that was the figure appearing in the affidavit, but it was wrong. The amount of the grant for the current financial year was to be £55,657, but for last year the amount was £71,212.

The affidavit of Mr. Belton and other special defendants went on to state that subsidiary bodies had to make provision by way of home assistance and special works to relieve abnormal unemployment, and that works were undertaken months ago on the representation by the Minister "that State grants would be available for local authorities to ease the financial burden." The subsidiary bodies would not have undertaken extensive new works if they had had any reason to anticipate a reduction in the agricultural grant. The Council's request to the Executive Council to provide out of moneys transferred from the Suspense Account a further grant to meet the rates on agricultural land had been refused, and the Executive Council had also refused to meet a deputation from the County Council to discuss the position.

RATEPAYERS' INTERESTS.

The County Council considered that, if the rate were struck, it could not be levied, collected or paid, so that provision for carrying on the services would not be forthcoming. The result of striking it would be the breakdown of the finances of the Council, and of the other bodies for whose estimates the rates were designed to provide. The Council had suggested as remedies for the position the maintenance of the agricultural grant at last year's figure, or its increase, the further reduction of the estimates to provide the minimum for absolutely indispensable services, or the provision of further relief from national funds.

The Council had endeavoured to secure from the Minister consideration of these various expedients, and "have not at any time declined to determine or strike a rate. They have sought from the Minister extensions of time necessary for the consideration of these problems, and are, and have been, always willing to discharge their statutory duty of determining a rate. The present difficulties, it is submitted, are due to the intransigeant attitude adopted by the Minister. The Council respectfully submit they are not bound arbitrarily or automatically to determine a particular rate, but that the matters herein stated are proper matters for their consideration, and that they are bound to consider and have regard to them, and are entitled to proper opportunities of considering them before proceeding to the determination of a rate."

In a separate affidavit, Messrs. Dardis and Ennis stated that "the financial condition of the ratepayers in County Dublin is parlous"; that they were absolutely unable to pay the proposed rates; that these rates were too high, and that a much lower rate was sufficient. Large numbers of influential ratepayers had approached them, and pointed out the serious results which would follow upon the striking of the proposed rate, and it was under the influence of such representations that they had voted against striking it. They claimed to have acted bona fide and in the best interests of the county and of the ratepayers in general.

Finally, the Attorney-General submitted that the Minister for Local Government was right in thinking that such a course as had been followed in this case should not be allowed, and that he must invite the intervention of the Court to see that the whole machinery of County Dublin in such an important matter should not be allowed to break down.

Mr. Costello, on behalf of the County Council, submitted that the Court had no jurisdiction to issue the order asked for, and certainly not in the form in which the conditional order had been granted in this case. The Court, having regard to the conduct of the Minister, should not come to his aid in this exceptional form of relief, but he should be left to any other form that he had of enforcing his "official tyranny."

Counsel had not concluded when the further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

SALE OF CLONMEL GARAGE.

At Clonmel yesterday Mr. W. Toppin, auctioneer, put up for sale Messrs. O'Gorman Bros.' garage, Parnell street, Clonmel, by instructions of the official liquidator, Mr. C. P. McCarthy. There was only one bidder, Mr. T. F. O'Brien, solicitor, Clonmel, who was declared the purchaser at £2,505, £5 over the reserve. Messrs. O'Gorman Bros.' factory, and Prior Park House, adjoining, already had been disposed of to a Dublin solicitor in trust.

THE LUCK OF THE DRAW.

WHO'S WHO IN PRIZE LIST.

HOW IRELAND FARED.

SIR JOSEPH GLYNN, himself a member of the Hospitals' Committee, is thought to have drawn a horse, Lovers' Walk. On a visit yesterday at his house, 81 Ailesbury road, Dublin, it was learned that Sir Joseph is at present in England, and is not expected back in Dublin until this morning. The pseudonym on the counterfoil is "Joseph," which bears out the supposition that Sir Joseph himself is the winner.

"Hilarian," who drew Thrapston, is a well-known English solicitor. He bought the ticket in Ireland, and left it with Mr. F. S. Collins, solicitor, of 18 Kildare street, Dublin, who is a friend of his. It is not the first time "Hilarian" has been successful.

Mr. B. M. Keegan, who drew Interlace, is the managing director of Messrs. Denis Keegan, Ltd., a large firm of car and motor cycle agents at 15 South King street, Dublin. Mr. Keegan is married, and lives with his family at Dun Laoghaire.

CALLED AFTER HORSE.

Mr. John Shiel, of 9 Moore street, Dublin, who drew Lovers' Walk, used the pseudonym "Minnetonka" because he once owned a racehorse of that name. "She won a number of prizes for me a few years ago," he said, when interviewed yesterday, "and as she brought me luck then I thought her name might do the same for me now."

Mr. Shiel owns a large provision store in Moore street, and carried on business as usual yesterday.

The ticket that drew the horse Raymond in the name of "the Abbey Syndicate," of 84 Middle Abbey street, Dublin, is owned by Miss Mary Cashion, who carries on a dressmaking establishment there, and by the members of her family. They all had interests in ten tickets.

Mr. James Allis, who stayed at 136 Phillipsburgh avenue, Fairview, Dublin, has been identified as the holder of the ticket with the nom-de-plume "Goose Green," which drew King Salmon. Mr. Allis was not at home yesterday, and it was presumed that he had gone to England. He is a native of Tipperary.

IN THE PROVINCES.

Blue Grass was drawn by Mrs. Moore, Windsor avenue, Lurgan, Co. Armagh. She is the wife of Mr. George Moore, manager of the Lurgan Labour Exchange. She used the nom-de-plume "A Ford This Time," remarking to some friends that the car she liked best might come out of the Dublin "sweep."

The holder of the ticket, "Lucky June, 1933," which drew Raymond, is Mr. Jack Stratton, an employé of Mrs. Hall, Master of the Carlow Hounds. Mr. Stratton is a native of Catistock, Dorsetshire, England.

"I had," he said, "purchased a few tickets ever since the Hospitals' Sweepstakes started. This time I had made up my mind not to purchase a ticket, or a share. However, my wife advised me to have another try."

The following employés at Granstown Manor, Ballacolla, the residence of Lord Castletown, have drawn King Salmon:—Miss Mary Dunne (cook), Mrs. B. Corby, Mr. Richard Bergin (butler) and Mr. James Ryan (gardener). They have equal shares in the ticket. The seller of the ticket is Mr. James Whelan, Court, Ballacolla.

The ticket, "Lucky Monday," which drew Raymond, is held by Miss May Richardson, aged sixteen, of Ballinacourty, Castleconnell. She lives with her mother, who is a widow, with forty acres of land.

"Newly Wed," who drew Manitoba, is George Byrne (20), of 3 Dandy street, Whitehouse, Belfast. He is a yarn hawker in Whitehouse Mill. Sharing the ticket with him are James Sleath (26), of 25 Mary's place, Whitehouse, his brother-in-law; John Sleath (25), Labourers' Cottages, Whitehouse, a brother of the latter, and Patrick Power (31), 3 Dandy street. Patrick Power and James Sleath are employed in the mill as oilers, but John Sleath is unemployed.

Mr. Hugh McKee, a salesman in the employment of Messrs. Warden and Co., High street, Newtownards, is the holder of a ticket which drew King Salmon. After receiving a telegram from Dublin announcing his good luck Mr McKee left his work "for an unknown destination."

OFFERS.

"Hold Me Tight," of Killin Mills, Longford, who drew Solar Boy is John J. Baxter. He has received several offers to buy shares in his ticket, among them being one of £1,950 for the ticket. He has decided to keep the ticket. Mr. Baxter is a farmer, and he owns the local grain mills.

Mr. M. O'Regan, who drew Statesman, resides with his widowed mother, four brothers, and a sister in Killys street, Loughrea. He is home assistance officer for Loughrea district, and secretary of the Galway County Board G.A.A.. With Mr. Felle, home assistance officer, Portumna, Mr. O'Regan purchased a share in a ticket that drew Statesman, from Mr. Mark Heneghan, of St. Mary's Villas, Galway.

Mrs. Helena A. Jackson, 111 South Parade, Belfast, was playing a game of golf on the Ormeau links yesterday, and, discussing the Derby with some friends, announced her intention of backing Tuppence. Before the game had finished she was informed that a ticket held by her under the nom-de-plume of "Badminton," had drawn Tuppence.

The ticket which drew Young Lover in Cork is held by Mr. P. Collins, secretary, Messrs. Hutton's, Ltd., and a prominent member of the Douglas Golf Club, on behalf of his sister, Miss M. B. Collins, with whom he resides at 7 Charlemont terrace, Wellington road.

The Cork ticket which has drawn Scarlet Tiger is held by Miss Nellie Humphreys, Moy Allo, Menloe Gardens, Ballintemple, who used the nom-de-plume "You Never Know Your Luck." Miss Humphreys stated that the ticket was one of four held in conjunction with her sister, Miss Alice Humphreys, and her brother, Mr. Humphreys, who would share in the proceeds.

The ticket with the nom-de-plume "Heaven Sent," which drew Happy Call, is held by Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Gleeson, 31 Capwell road, Cork. Mr. Gleeson is employed in the drapery establishment of the Munster Arcade, Cork.

It is understood that the Clonmel holder of the ticket that drew Light Sussex is Mr. Carroll, a Dublin auditor, who has an extensive practice in South Tipperary, and apartments at Gordon place, Clonmel.

THE SALE OF WINNING TICKETS.

AN ESTIMATE OF THEIR VALUES.

The Racing Correspondent of The Times says:—I have taken no tickets in the Irish Sweepstakes but if I had I would like to know what sort of offer I could get for a successful ticket—that is, a ticket which has drawn a horse. Inquiries show that, roughly, the value of a successful ticket is according to the odds offered against the horse drawn, roughly as below. I do not claim that they represent the mathematical value according to the odds, but they are what big firms of bookmakers would give for them. People who want to sell a half, or even a share, should deal only with firms that they know well. These prices are based on a field of 26, and £1,520 for each starter.

MR. F. LYNCH'S REPLY

TO MR. FRANK MacDERMOT.

In reply to the letter from Mr. Frank MacDermot, T.D., which was published in our issue of Monday, Mr. Fionan Lynch, T.D., writes:—

"The final paragraph of Mr. MacDermot's letter published in your columns to-day more clearly discloses his frame of mind than even his speeches. Here is a political pronouncement which in effect amounts to this—that fair or unfair criticism must be permitted, and, presumably, that to answer it is to show bad temper. Mr. MacDermot's criticisms, however lacking in wisdom, were for a long period allowed to go unanswered. The immunity apparently developed an idea that it should be endured and accepted. Cumann na nGaedheal has nothing to fear from criticism. Unfortunately, the criticism it has got is of such a type that to answer it is to waste time.

"It is not whether Cumann na nGaedheal was wrong in having the general election in January, 1932, that is now of practical importance, but, in parenthesis, it may be asked was not the country entitled to be consulted as to what Ministry should attend the Ottawa Conference, and, if so, was it not fair to allow that Ministry some months to prepare? What really matters and what ought to be the dominant consideration is the policy of the Government and how a fundamental change in that policy and outlook of that Government can be brought about; and, failing such a change, how can the country be rid of a Government whose policy is bringing such disaster and suffering?

"Mr. MacDermot states that Cumann na nGaedheal might have made proposals for lightening the burden of rates and annuities on farmers, and enlarges upon their intentions about the Ottawa Conference. An additional sum of £750,000 had been provided for relief of agricultural rates in the Budget of 1931-32. A supplementary Budget was introduced in November, 1931, imposing extra taxation to balance the national finances. The taxation so imposed—income tax and duty on petrol—affected farmers slightly, if at all. It is seriously urged that during those months—September, October, November and December, of 1931, or January, 1932, when Britain was in a serious financial position, forced to introduce a supplementary Budget imposing extra taxation, and to inaugurate a series of big reductions in expenditure, the question of the payments of the annuities to Great Britain should have been raised?

"Mr. MacDermot might be more explicit in his proposals for lightening the burden of rates and annuities. Confronted with falling revenue and the financial condition of our creditor at the time, surely it was quite enough to have the Fianna Fail Party committing itself to a policy of savings which could not be effected; of reductions in taxation which could not be secured; of big sums of money being made available for the relief of the burdens of agriculture, without another party entering the list with challenges of even a more seductive character.

"Cumann na nGaedheal rather welcomes the suggestion that it stands for the Treaty. Imperfections in that instrument there may be, and probably will be, for a long time. Political parties may vie with each other in their denunciations of these imperfections, but statesmanship which looks for a solution without advertence to the difficulties confronting the country is but the prelude to shaking the public confidence in elected representatives.

"Cumann na nGaedheal would welcome cooperation in achieving its definite policy of adherence to, and acceptance of, the Treaty; of the alteration of it by negotiation and agreement in whatever respects national policy so required; of the easing of the farmer's burdens by securing for him the world price to which he is entitled and any and every preference which can possibly be secured in the only market which can absorb the surplus produce of the agricultural industry of this country; of reducing national taxation, increased last year by £4,000,000, and of reducing national expenditure, which has been increased this year by £4,000,000.

"It is well to remind Mr. MacDermot that Cumann na nGaedheal was responsible for providing a Government for this country for ten years; that it had to restore order in difficult circumstances; that it had to create a great many new institutions of State; that, in fact, it had practically to found the State; that it had to meet abnormal national expenditure to secure these things; that during the ten years it paid off half of the cost of the civil war while providing new services, extending old services, lightening the burden of agriculture, helping towards the development of secondary industry and reducing national taxation. It has a record of achievement behind it. It has a big task in the present and in the future. But even if it had made all the mistakes which Mr. MacDermot charges it with, and which cannot be substantiated, its present policy is, as set out in my previous letter, the only one for the national and economic salvation of this country—to get rid of the present Government and its policy, restore our markets, reduce the burden of taxation, and help agriculture and industry, increase employment, and brighten the prospects and raise the standards of living of the poor.

"Is Mr. MacDermot prepared to give practical co-operation in the carrying out of this policy, or is he not? The country will derive no benefit from his vague general statements nor from the occasional support which he gives the Government in its minor details of policy while our export market, formerly worth £30,000,000, is in danger of being recklessly cast away."

LEAGUE TO DEBATE JEWISH PETITION.

GERMANY REJECTS REPORT OF IRISH DELEGATE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
GENEVA, Monday.

The German Government has refused to accept the report of Mr. Sean Lester (Irish Free State), on the petition of Herr Franz Bernheim, the Jew, of Upper Silesia, protesting against the treatment of Jews in that part of Germany and the discriminatory character of recent German legislation.

The report of Mr. Lester, it is understood, deals with four points.

1. It says that German legislative acts override the Geneva Convention of 1922 between Poland and Germany regarding the treatment of minorities in Upper Silesia.

2. It proposes that officials, judges, lawyers and others, who have suffered from the present measures in Upper Silesia, should be re-established in their old berths.

3. It suggests compensation for such of the victims as have suffered losses through cases of local courts.

4. It proposes that the German Government should report either to the Council or the rapporteur what action has been undertaken to meet the decisions of the Council.

The German Government apparently intends to contest the legality of the petition on the ground that Herr Bernheim was not a born Silesian. The Council is, therefore, confronted with the discussion which may lead to some frank speeches about the anti-Semitic measures of the Hitler Government.

To be binding any decision of the Council has to be unanimous. It is obvious that the German delegate will veto the report to-morrow, which will probably lead to a majority decision and a discussion which should be interesting.

OBITUARY.

MR. JAMES MacDONAGH.

The death occurred at Edgware, Middlesex, during the week-end of Mr. James MacDonagh, a noted musician. Mr. MacDonagh was a brother of Thomas MacDonagh, who was executed as one of the leaders of the Irish Rebellion in Easter Week, 1916, and also of Joseph MacDonagh, T.D., another prominent Republican, who died two days after his release from Mountjoy Prison in 1922.

Mr. James MacDonagh, who was a native of Co. Tipperary, went to London at an early age. For more than 20 years he was a member of the Covent Garden Opera Orchestra, and was also for a long period under Sir Henry Wood in the Queen's Hall Orchestra. He was a member of the London Symphony Orchestra, and a leading figure in the London Orchestral Association.

HOWTH CLIFF ACCIDENT.

HOW CLIMBER LOST HIS LIFE.

JURY'S TRIBUTE TO BRAVE BOY.

DR. MORTIMER WALTERS, Coroner for North County Dublin, held an inquest in the Royal Hotel, Howth, yesterday afternoon on John McEnally (12), a schoolboy, of 76 Vernon avenue, Clontarf, who died as the result of falling down a cliff near the Baily Lighthouse, Howth, on Sunday afternoon last.

Daniel McEnally, father of the dead boy, identified the body, and said that on Sunday morning his son asked him whether he might go to Howth. He at first attempted to dissuade the boy from going, but when he gave an undertaking that he would be careful and cautious he gave permission.

Dr. Charles Conroy said that the boy was brought to him in an unconscious condition on Sunday. He had a priest sent for, and the boy was anointed. He died ten minutes later. As the result of a post-mortem examination the witness found an extensive fracture of the skull. Death was due to shock and hæmorrhage, following these injuries.

Gerald Hynes (16) said that he met John McEnally on Sunday and asked him whether he would come to Howth. The boy, who said that he had to get the permission of his father, arranged to meet him at Howth Station.

They went around the Cliff Walk, and about 200 yards from the Baily Lighthouse, on the Dublin side, they descended a cliff. When they reached the bottom of the cliff the witness pointed out a cormorant's nest, which he had noticed on the previous Thursday. Young McEnally said that he would climb up to it, but the witness went first.

During the ascent, a matter of about twenty feet over a cave, McEnally took the wrong direction. The next he saw was McEnally slipping down. He fell on to a rock, and then slid into the sea.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

The witness called to his brother to take him from the water and when he got down he helped his brother to raise McEnally on to a ledge.

He then cycled to Howth and gave the alarm to the Guards and the Howth Lifeboat Committee.

"Willie" Hynes (12) said that he remained behind while the other two boys went after the nest. He entered a cave, and while he was there he heard a thud and his brother's voice calling. When he ran out he saw McEnally sliding, head downwards, into the sea. He pulled him back to the rock, and, with the assistance of his brother, succeeded in getting him on to the ledge. He remained with his companion until the life-boat arrived.

The Coroner—This boy had great presence of mind to lift him out of the water.

Inspector Murphy, Howth, added that great credit was due to the life-boat men, who, he said, were out at sea five minutes after the alarm was raised. They reached the scene of the accident in less than twenty-five minutes. He also undertook to bring the action of Willie Hynes before the notice of the Carnegie Hero Trust Fund.

The jury returned a verdict of "accidental death," and paid a tribute to the brave action of Willie Hynes.

They also added a rider suggesting that notices warning people of the danger of these cliffs should be erected.

BRITISH AND IRISH TRADE.

MR. PATRICK HANNON'S APPEAL.

In a letter to The Times, Mr. Patrick Hannon, M.P., writes:—The trade situation between Great Britain and the Irish Free State, as revealed in the announcement which appeared in The Times this morning, which summarised the figures embodied in the recent report of the Statistics Department of the Ministry for Industry and Commerce, presents a distressing commentary on the apparently hopeless misunderstanding between these two co-equal partners in the British Commonwealth of Nations. The figures you quoted showed that Irish imports from Great Britain fell by 38 per cent. in the first four months of the present year, as compared with the corresponding period of 1932. The percentage fall in the Irish exports to Great Britain in the same comparative period is 37.

Now, it may be quite true to say that the effect of current trade conditions must result in a reduction both of the import and of the export trade as between the two countries, but, quite clearly, the percentages given are, in a very large measure, due to the unfortunate commercial relations which obtain consequent upon the decision of the Irish Free State to refuse payment of the Irish land annuities. It would, I think, be fair to assume that 30 per cent. of the decrease in the volume of trade in either direction is due to this wholly political, but fundamental, cause.

It is needless to emphasise the grave injury which must necessarily be inflicted upon the Irish people, more particularly the agricultural community, whose market has been and must always continue to be Great Britain; and on the other hand the inconvenience and loss of trade to a great variety of industries in England and Scotland are—and, indeed, in many instances within my personal knowledge—of far-reaching consequence in the field of the employment of our workpeople.

How long is this unhappy state of affairs to continue? Is the present impasse an example of the bankruptcy of statesmanship and the futility of constructive diplomacy? A fall of £7 a head per annum in the commercial vitality of the population of the Irish Free State cannot be contemplated by any Irishman without disturbing apprehension. National pride and national self-respect are beautiful concepts in the life of nations, but their rigid observance sometimes inflicts severe wounds on the prosperity of peoples and the peaceful progress of mankind, where a moderate and less highly susceptible self-consciousness would have produced happy relations all round.

Mr. de Valera will shortly return from Rome, where he will have witnessed one of the greatest examples of ardent patriotism employed as an instrument of national progress which the world has ever seen, and he will have observed that the economic power which has been created in Italy has during its development always had careful regard for measures which led to expansion of trade with the rest of the world. He will also have noted, no doubt, that the tendency of even a powerful nation to become self-centred has its limitations.

The Secretary of State for the Dominions is, I am confident, making earnest preparation for the exacting duties which will devolve upon him during the deliberations of the World Economic Conference. It will, no doubt, enter largely into his thoughts how much can be achieved by new re-arrangement of fiscal reciprocation between Great Britain and the Irish Free State.

Can one who still ardently loves Ireland, and who is intimately concerned for the success of British industry and agriculture, make a plea for the subordination of the smaller considerations to greater, and urge that negotiations in a kindly spirit of mutual good-will between Mr. Thomas and Mr. de Valera might be initiated at the earliest possible moment, with great advantage to Great Britain, to Ireland, to the Empire, and, one may venture to hope, in some degree to the success of the World Economic Conference?

RAILWAYMEN'S HOLIDAYS.

THE UNOFFICIAL AGREEMENT.

ATTITUDE OF THE NATIONAL UNION.

FROM OUR INDUSTRIAL CORRESPONDENT.

YESTERDAY morning the members of the deputation appointed by the unofficial delegate conference of National Union of Railwaymen branches on Sunday in Dublin interviewed Mr. C. D. Watters, Irish Secretary of the Organisation.

The deputation pointed out that the rank and file are impatient at the delay on the part of the Union to give effect to its portion of the agreement made at the end of the unofficial strike on the Great Southern Railways.

Under this agreement, before the holidays question can be re-opened, it is necessary that the Union should request the Minister to make representations to the company to discuss the matter. The agreement was worded in this way, because it was felt at the time that only the bodies which had made the general railways agreement could alter it.

SECRETARY'S REPLY.

Mr. Watters went into the matter with the deputation, and gave them to understand that the Union could not see its way to take any notice of anything which had resulted from unofficial action.

It is understood that he indicated quite definitely that the Union was not prepared to take any steps to re-open the negotiations at the present moment.

INTERVIEW WITH MINISTER.

THE COMPANIES' POSITION.

The deputation proceeded from the headquarters of the National Union of Railwaymen to Government Buildings, where they were in conversation with Mr. Lemass, the Minister for Industry and Commerce, for upwards of an hour.

At the conclusion of this interview the following official statement was issued:—

"The Minister for Industry and Commerce met to-day a deputation from the Saorstat branches of the N.U.R.

"The deputation made representations to the Minister concerning the matters set out in the Agreement between the Strike Committee and the Minister on the occasion of the termination of the 'unofficial' strike of the employés of the Great Southern Railways.

"As regards the first matter set out in the Agreement, the Minister drew the attention of the deputation to the fact that he had undertaken to request the companies to meet representatives of the Union to discuss the terms of the railway settlement relating to holidays without pay, if and when he was requested so to do by the Unions which were parties to the settlement. The Minister explained that, as he had received no official request from the Unions concerned in this connection, he had not yet taken any action.

"As regards the second item in the agreement, the Minister informed the deputation that he had both communicated with the companies and discussed with their representatives the matter of the fixation of a minimum rate of pay below which the cuts provided for in the terms of settlement would not operate. The companies had set out their attitude in a letter, a copy of which had been supplied to the deputation. Briefly, the companies' position was that they could not consider representations of this nature unless made officially by the trade unions with which they had concluded an agreement. After discussion, the Minister undertook to consider in what way he could facilitate a meeting of representatives of the companies and the unions to discuss the matter."

The members of the deputation were:—Messrs. Gerald Walsh (Cork), C. Connor (Tralee), John Noctor, H. Halligan, J. Murray, R. Whelan (Dublin), and M. McLoughlin (Wexford).

They met later at the union headquarters to consider the situation.

THE RAILWAY SHOPS.

Further dismissals from the railway service are likely to take place, according to a trade union official, as a result of economies in the engineering shops.

The Broadstone engineering shops are, it is said, about to be closed down, and the men and plant transferred to Inchicore. When the transfer has been made, any redundancy will be counteracted by the dismissal of the last entrants into the shops.

The number of men that will be effected has not yet been estimated.

It is expected that the complete transfer will have taken place by the end of June.

PERSONALITIES IN THE CHAMBER

DUBLIN COUNTY COUNCIL.

PERSONALITIES indulged in at a previous meeting were discussed at a meeting of the Dublin County Council last evening, Mr. J. J. Sheil presiding.

Mr. R. Blake said that at the last meeting of the Council Mr. Mulvanny had made use of an insulting expression towards him. He did not deserve the insulting term, and he now asked the chairman to require Mr. Mulvanny to withdraw the expression.

The Chairman said that the incident occurred at a meeting of the Finance Committee. He left it now to Mr. Mulvanny to withdraw the expression.

Mr. Mulvanny said that it was at a meeting of the County Council that he used the expression, and he, therefore, claimed privilege. If he had called Mr. Blake out of his name he would withdraw the expression, but he held that he had not called the Councillor out of his name. If the chairman insisted that he withdraw the expression, he would leave the room. He would not withdraw the expression.

Mr. Rollins said that he, too, had been called an offensive name by a member of the Council, and he seriously resented it.

Mr. Mulvanny said that he had not used any offensive expression towards Mr. Rollins.

The incident closed.

HIGH INTEREST RATES.

There were several notices of motion on the agenda concerning the borrowing by the Board of Health of sums of money for sewers, water services, etc., varying from £600 to £280,000, all of which were postponed.

With regard to the sum of £280,000 for the purpose of carrying out new schemes under the Labourers Acts in the county health district of Dublin, which stood in the name of Mr. Dardis, Mr. Belton said that the matter ought to be postponed until the Council had fuller particulars.

The rate of interest on that sum would be 5¼ per cent., and that would mean a high rent on the cottages, and there would be a serious burden on the ratepayers in consequence. He believed that the money could be got at 3½ per cent.

The Chairman suggested that the proposal be postponed for a month.

Mr. Dardis said that he was not willing that the scheme should be held up.

After further discussion, the matter was postponed. In the meantime further information would be obtained. The chairman added that the scheme would not be held up.

A letter was received from Mr. Thomas H. Downey, tendering his resignation from the Council.

On the motion of Mr. Dooge, the Council decided to request Mr. Downey to withdraw his resignation.

Mr. J. A. Flynn, 5 and 6 Ellis's quay, was appointed whole-time chief veterinary inspector for the county, and the following part-time veterinary inspectors:—Mr. F. J. Daly (Swords), for Balrothery area; Mr. W. E. McDonald (Maynooth), for the Celbridge area; and Mr. G. T. O'Reilly (Smithfield), for South Dublin.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

FURTHER GAINS RECORDED: STOCKS CLOSE FIRM.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.
NEW YORK, Monday.

Speculative quarters on the Stock market once more made the most of the prospects of inflation, but to-day's gains were considerably smaller, and did not exceed 2 points. Trading was again very heavy, the turnover reaching 6,950,000 shares.

Prices were unsettled at the opening, and early in the session the list moved irregularly lower. A number of Industrial and Chemical stocks fell 1 to 4 points under heavy profit-taking. Rails were fairly steady in tone. Metal issues were given support, while Oil shares were in good demand.

After showing hesitancy early in the afternoon, the market resumed its advance, and a long list of stocks rose 1 to 2 points, with Oil, Metal, Aviation and Entertainment counters prominent in the rise. Traders were still anxious to buy on the theory that the Government will actively pursue throughout the summer its policy of restoring commodity prices.

Indications of further gains in steel mill activity, together with the advance in copper, provided a considerable impetus for the Stock market. Oils displayed strength in hopes that Government control or threatened control would bring better prices, while the opinion was expressed that Entertainment and Aviation issues were supported in the belief that they lagged in the recent upswing.

The market closed firm.

WINNIPEG GRAINS.

WHEAT opened barely steady at ⅛c. to ⅝c. loss. A slow foreign demand, together with advices of favourable weather in the spring wheat area, had a disturbing effect during the early part of the session, but prices later rallied in unison with Chicago and on a fair foreign inquiry. The close, however, was barely steady, with values still showing the initial losses of ⅛c. to ⅝c. Opening options—May 64½, July 64⅞, Oct. 67, Dec. 67⅞. CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Monday.

Active commission house selling, coupled with liquidation, caused recessions during early dealings on the grain market to-day. The easier tone of cotton and stocks had a disturbing effect, but prices subsequently rallied in sympathy with the recovery of other markets and on covering by shorts. Bullish advices from Russia constituted an additional helpful factor, but a partial set-back occurred towards the close under profit-taking and owing to the absence of outside buying. On the wheat market local pressure was influenced by a report from Washington indicating that the stocks of wheat available for export and carry-over in the principal exporting countries amounted to 774,000,000 bushels. News of favourable weather in the winter wheat belt was another bearish factor, but prices rallied on purchasing by cash and Elevator interests and on indications of an oversold market. Maize values early eased in unison with wheat and owing to a probable fair increase in the visible supply. The market later rallied owing to lighter offerings, coupled with news of less favourable weather and buying by commission houses. The rally in wheat had a stimulating effect. Rye early declined in sympathy with wheat, but later improved on buying against sales of maize, together with purchasing on prospects of a smaller crop. The late rally in wheat had a beneficial effect. Oats fluctuated in sympathy with the movements in maize.

WHEAT at the opening was barely steady at ⅞c. to ⅛c. decline. The closing tendency was barely steady, ⅜c. down to ½c. up.

THE ANNUITIES PAYMENTS.

MR. PATRICK WHITE'S SUGGESTIONS.

In the course of a letter written from Clonalvy, County Dublin, Mr. Patrick White, a former Parliamentary representative for North Meath, expresses the opinion that the permanent settlement of the amount of the annuities and the removal of the embargo on the cattle trade between the Free State and Great Britain are of paramount importance to both countries.

It is a national question, Mr. White says, high above party strife and party government. All electors and all parties should unite to preserve the farmers' title, which is now in jeopardy, to over £200,000,000 worth of landed property won by the patriotism, genius and sacrifices made by statesmen since the days of Charles Stewart Parnell and his able lieutenants, and preserved by the Irish Parliamentary Party during its lifetime.

Having quoted Dr. Ryan's recent statement in the Senate of the attitude of the Government, Mr. White says that if the Executive Council allow him to have "conversations" with Mr. J. H. Thomas, he will be able by the production of facts and the use of moral suasion to reduce the amount of the annuities from four and a quarter millions sterling to less than two millions. This would settle the annuities, remove the embargo on Irish cattle and promote friendly relations between the two Governments and the two peoples.

Mr. A. A. Odlum, Kilnacut, Portarlington.

Mr. K. B. Williams, Mallow, Co. Cork.

A Milling Advisory Committee will shortly be appointed by the Minister under the same Act.

PIG EXPORT TRADE.

According to official statistics just issued 34,746 live pigs were exported for curing from the seaports of the Irish Free State during the twenty-one weeks ended May 25th, 1933. This is a marked decrease upon the 119,910 and 157,622 animals exported during the similar periods of 1932 and 1931, respectively. The number of pigs bought for curing during the same period in the Irish Free State, however, shows an increase of 32,299 animals upon the number purchased during the first twenty-one weeks of last year. During the week ending May 25, 238 pigs were exported for curing from the Irish Free State, as compared with 499 animals during the same period of last year.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

DRAIN ON RESOURCES.

HOW ENGLISH RACING IS HIT BY FRENCH VICTORIES.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday Night.

THIS morning the French colt, Rodosto, left Epsom for Paris—a slightly melancholy termination to a journey from which so much was hoped. It is all very bad luck for his owner, who had been so fervently hoping that she would be the first woman to win an Epsom Derby. If a French colt is good enough to come here and win a classic race no one can grouse, because it is open competition, but the fact remains that when such a thing happens it takes a good deal of money out of circulation.

CASE OF IRELAND.

One could also say that when an English colt goes to Ireland and wins the Irish Derby it takes money out of Ireland, but the cases are not exactly parallel, because the Irish form is advertised if the locally-trained horses run well against the visitor, and many an owner has been enabled to effect a good sale in consequence. But when a big prize in England is won by a French owner who does not race regularly in this country, like, say, M. de St. Ilary or M. Marcel Boussac, the money is gone beyond recovery.

Apart from the stake money of nearly £10,000, a big sum in bets was won over Rodosto in the Two Thousand Guineas. The French people were prepared to back him up to the hilt for the Derby, and had he won an enormous sum would have gone out of the country.

LOSS TO THE "POOL."

It must be remembered that all the money in racing is more or less in a common pool. It is constantly circulating, but if it goes to France or Patagonia it is gone out of the pool and does not come back, and there is so much the less to play for.

When an English owner finds his account at Weatherby's credited with, say, £10,000 by winning a classic race he is disposed to go to Doncaster again, and spend a proportion of it in yearlings. It goes back into circulation, and more people benefit. The common pool nowadays is small enough in all conscience, so that everyone who is in any way connected with racing cannot afford to see any of it go clean out with the best of grace. This may not be strictly in accordance with what is called the best traditions of sport, but those who pay attention to the laws of self-preservation pay some heed to it.

Rodosto has not so far been formally struck out, but Mr. Dewar scratched Lochiel this morning, and Donoghue will now ride Thrapston for Lord Derby. These disappearances have had the natural reaction in the betting market, and there were a good many changes this morning when the card was called over.

THE WAGERING.

Since I wrote yesterday there has been some rain, but it does not appear that a deluge is imminent. The defection of Rodosto has led to Manitoba becoming a clear favourite, and 6 to 1 was the best offer about him this afternoon, while Hyperion was knocked out to 21 to 2. On the other hand, Hyperion's stable companion, Scarlet Tiger, shortened to 13 to 1.

Scarlet Tiger has been coming on so fast in the last few weeks that he found ready backers to-day. Young Lover shortened to 100 to 9, and King Salmon was backed at 100 to 8, while there was also some money for the Northern colt, Light Sussex.

I doubt, however, whether the prices laid this morning will bear a deal of resemblance to those which will be returned after the race has been run.

There were two important defections from the Coronation Cup this morning, the Aga Khan's pair, Taj Kasra and Firdaussi, which suggests that Dastur will be His Highness's chosen runner. Dastur impressed greatly in his gallop at the week-end, and it suggested that he has come right back to his best form, which was not shown in the City and Suburban.

SELECTIONS.

Brown Jack will be in the field to-morrow for the Rosebery Memorial Handicap, in which he was beaten last year by Lord Nugent, but he gives a lot of weight away, like 2st. to Foxearth and 30lb. to Mandritsara. His Majesty's colt, who has two victories to his credit this season, will be a good deal expected to win, but he may not beat MANDRITSARA, who is my selection.

As the Portrait colt does not run for the Woodcote Stakes, this may be won by one trained by Mr. Cottrill, probably BERMUDA. The Craven Plate may be won by SOME CATCH.

GALTEE MORE.

SUSPICION'S CHANCE.

FOX-EARTH FOR CHOICE IN THE ROSEBERY MEMORIAL.

A FEW years ago the opening day of the Derby meeting at Epsom was a very quiet day, as the card made no special inducement for the ordinary public to go. Recently, however, the programme was strengthened by the inclusion of the Rosebery Memorial Handicap, which is run over the Great Metropolitan course, and, with that popular old favourite, Brown Jack, in the field, the meeting is likely to open on a successful note.

Brown Jack has had only one race this season, and that was over ten furlongs, which was not far enough for him. Last year he was set to carry 10st. 2lb. in this event, and all but beat Lord Nugent, while this time he has to shoulder 5lb. less.

Roi de Paris, who won the Great Metropolitan Stakes here last year, is expected to improve on his Chester Cup running, where he was beaten for speed in the final stages. The third in that event was Mandritsara, who here meets Roi de Paris on slightly worse terms. He is a promising stayer, and is one I shall want to keep on the right side.

Fox-Earth has never run over this distance in public, but he gave a fine display at Newmarket when beating the game Truncheon. He is improving, and is sure to carry His Majesty's colours prominently. Grey Wonder finished third in the Great Metropolitan Stakes after being left at the gate, but he had a moderate lot behind him. Summer Princess is a winner on the course, but her recent form is poor, and I shall take my chance with who will have Mandritsara and Roi de Paris to beat.

Cottrill, the Lambourn trainer, has entered three for the Woodcote Handicap, the first six furlongs two-year-old race of the season, and he will probably run Bermuda. One of the others, Orris colt, dead-heated with The Old Pretender at the last Newmarket meeting, and the latter will run here. I have heard encouraging reports concerning Valona colt, but who is thought to be slightly better than Orris colt over the distance, has the vote.

Duty Calls gelding is fancied for the Juvenile Selling Plate, but I prefer the claims of a good winner from Paradise Lost at the last meeting here.

The other selling race I shall leave to Gordon Richards's mount,

SUSPICION,

a very convincing winner at the Doncaster meeting.

The champion jockey will ride Sun Prince in the Craven Plate, and it was on this horse that he rode one of his best finishes of the season at Chester. He was badly handicapped with a slipped saddle, but even so was able to drive Sun Prince forward to beat Comprehension by a neck. Sun Prince should run well again, but I have more fancy for who was rather unlucky to be beaten by Exaggerated at Haydock Park.

The "course specialist," Steve Donoghue, may have a winning ride in the Norbury Plate, in which his mount is to be

TIPPETS.

Tippets put up a good show in Flange's race at the last Newmarket meeting, and should be better suited by the Epsom track. Of the others, I make a favourable note of Iownaputter, with whom C. Leader should win a good race before the season is over.

NEWMARKET NOTES.

CLASSIC HORSES IN GOOD TRIM SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

NEWMARKET, Monday.

THE morning opened dull and cold, and at the time of writing there are signs of rain. It was only natural, after such a busy day on Saturday, that training operations were quiet this morning. The Stanley House team, which is still under the charge of F. Osgood, kept to the Bury side, and A. Wragg was on his Derby mount, Scarlet Tiger, in a nice mile spin with St. Andrews.

It was not possible to have found any fault with Lord Durham's Derby colt, and that remark also applies to Lord Derby's pair, Hyperion (Weston) and Thrapston, who travelled the same distance at an easy pace. Present conditions underfoot will suit Hyperion admirably.

It was over a mile and a quarter that J. Jarvis sent Interlace with Tartan. There are many who expect Interlace to improve considerably on his Newmarket Stakes running, but, personally, I do not consider him likely to turn the tables on those who finished in front of him in that event.

Naturally, Capt. Boyd-Rochfort allowed Brown Betty, who acquitted herself so well in Saturday's gallop, to take matters easily over five furlongs. She is looking fresh and well, and she will, no doubt, have another good stripped spin before being despatched to Epsom for the Oaks.

Frank Butters was on the Racecourse side and gave his Coronation Cup candidate, Dastur, a half-speed gallop over one mile. He was never better than he is at present, and it will take a smart horse to lower his colours on Thursday. Firdaussi (C. Dickens) and Orpen (Morris) had a good mile spin.

Young Lover, with Robber Chief, came one mile at a rousing pace. The former moved well, as did Felicitation, with Largition, in a similar spin, while Gino stretched out well over a mile at a good pace with Shamsuddin. Each of Butters' Derby candidates has adherents, and I shall be prepared to see all three of them fighting factors.

Sacred Song was Mereworth's mentor in a good-pace gallop over one mile. Mereworth has failed in each of his four races, but it does not shake my confidence in him winning a nice race before long.

Whitaker gave Knight of the Vale and Truncheon a good mile and a quarter spin, and I expect to see the former improve upon his last running when saddled for the Chipstead Handicap.

We shall not be very strongly represented on the opening day at Epsom.

GLADWOOD

has been a consistent performer this season, and should about win the Juvenile Selling Plate.

The Bear, Pinault and

can be made out to hold winning chances in the Ashstead Selling Plate, and I select the last-named.

Although getting on in years Servus still looks well in himself, and will run well for the Rosebery Memorial Plate. Mandritsara will be better suited by this course than when he finished third for the Chester Cup, and will be the danger to

FOX-EARTH*

The latter has done well since he won the Thurlow Handicap here.

Levanter is expected to improve upon his running here in the Woodcote Stakes. Valona colt should also improve upon his running at our last fixture, but my vote goes to who has pleased in her gallops of late.

Trapper had useful form in Ireland, and will run well for the Craven Plate. I prefer Appledram to Craig Nahir, and I do not think we saw the best of Some Catch at Kempton Park. The latter will be the danger to who ran well behind Slieve Donard here, and will be difficult to beat.

Iownaputta, Tippets and

are fancied for the Norbury Plate, and the latter has my vote.

SEA FISHER ATONES.

HEAD VICTORY FOR GLASS BOSS AT MULLINGAR.

WHEN Crockafotha won the Newbrook Plate at Mullingar, yesterday, backers got for the moment a serious set-back; for Overleaf, who finished second, was one of the soundest of favourites. It was generally accepted that there would be an objection, for the first and second finished very close together, and it was a question for the Stewards to decide as to which of the horses was to blame in the bumping which occurred. They decided against Crockafotha, and awarded the race to Overleaf, and the altering of the judge's placings just meant the difference between a losing or winning day to most of those at the meeting.

MISHAP TO BISHOPLAND.

Favourites in several other races came home in front, but Bishopland, who was the best backed in an open market for the Belvedere Plate, met with a mishap during the race, and, breaking a leg, had to be destroyed. This mishap left the path to victory an easy one for Princess of Rheims, who was also a well-supported candidate.

Sea Fisher, who has disappointed on many occasions of late, put up a very strong finish to win the Directors' Plate and beat Ballymoe by a length. It looked odds on the latter scoring when he took second place to the winner a furlong from the winning post, but Mr. J. E. Ryan's horse answered well to the calls made upon him by S. Magee, and won, as stated, in very game style.

Glass Boss, like Sea Fisher, has been a long time waiting to win a race, but he got his chance in the Railway Plate, which, thanks to a very strong piece of finishing riding on the part of M. Wing, he won by a head from Rock Less, who at the distance looked an almost certain winner.

SEVERAL FALLS.

There were several falls during the afternoon, and when Irish Colleen, one of the runners for the Newbrook Plate, collided with the rails, and fell, Mr. P. Sleator, who was riding, sustained concussion, and had to be removed from the course to hospital. In the Clonhugh Steeplechase Proud Phil and Doctor Whitehill were both going well when they came to grief three-quarters of a mile from home, and W. T. O'Grady, who had the mount on Mr. Duggan's horse, got a bad shaking. The race then fell an easy prey to Lady Nugent's Lacatoi, who thus completed a double event for Mr. R. H. Walker as trainer and Mr. F. E. McKeever as rider. Poor Chance, staying on better than any of his four opponents in the Westmeath Steeplechase, readily credited the North of Ireland owner, Mr. A. Willis, with the winning spoils.

The catering was carried out by Mrs. Lawlor and Sons, Naas.

RODOSTO RETURNS HOME.

MANITOBA REMAINS FAVOURITE FOR THE DERBY.

RODOSTO, the ill-fated French candidate for the Derby, left Tattenham Corner Station at 8 o'clock yesterday morning en route to France by way of Folkestone. He was accompanied by his stable companion, Kwasind. He showed no sign of any injury.

The only Derby horse on the course at Epsom yesterday morning was Franz Hals, the Irish candidate, who was given a nice canter of about a mile, and pulled up very fresh and well.

S. DONOGHUE'S MOUNT.

Stephen Donoghue is to have a mount in the race after all. When Lochiel was struck out the veteran horseman, who won the Derby four times in five years, and steered the winners of two substitute Derbys at Newmarket, was left without a mount, but Lord Derby has come to the rescue, and Donoghue will ride Thrapston, who is Lord Derby's second string to Hyperion.

The Hon. George Lambton, who trains Lord Derby's horses, is still confined to bed owing to an injury to his leg, and regrets that there is no hope at all of his seeing the Derby run. He hopes, however, to hear on the wirreless of the success of Hyperion.

The Malton-trained pair, Coroado and Light Sussex, left their training quarters yesterday for Epsom, so that the former, who was reported a doubtful runner, may now be regarded as a certain starter.

BACKING THE OUTSIDER.

There was a remarkable run on Tuppence for the Derby in England yesterday, and people in different parts of the country were anxious to secure the odds of 250 to 1, mentioned at Friday's call-over, about Miss Paget's colt. Few layers would oblige, but offered to lay the horse at yesterday's call-over price, which was just half the odds offered last week.

LONDON BETTING.

GOOD SUPPORT FOR SCARLET TIGER.

HYPERION EASY TO BACK AT CALL-OVER.

There was a good deal of wagering when the card on the Derby was called over at the Victoria Club, London, yesterday, and the disappearance of the French colt, Rodosto, caused several candidates to shorten in price. Manitoba, whose price at the call-over on Friday last was 15 to 2, closed a firm favourite at 6 to 1, Lord Woolavington's colt being supported to win about £8,000 in all.

Hyperion receded in the wagering as compared with his previous quotation, and was very easy to back at 21 to 2, only about £400 being invested on him, but on the other hand there was plenty of money for his stable companion, Scarlet Tiger, who had friends at 1,000 to 70 (thirteen times) before closing at 13 to 1.

Young Lover travelled well, advancing from 100 to 8 to 100 to 9, at which price he was backed to win £10,000; but only small money went on King Salmon at 13 to 1, leaving 100 to 8 the best offer.

Light Sussex opened at 1,000 to 60, which price was taken eleven times, Captain Elsey's charge closing at 100 to 7. Felicitation closed firm at 100 to 6, after being backed to win £5,000 at 18 to 1.

Of the others, Statesman, Franz Hals and Myosotis were in most demand. Prices:—

DRAIN ON RESOURCES.

HOW ENGLISH RACING IS HIT BY FRENCH VICTORIES.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday Night.

THIS morning the French colt, Rodosto, left Epsom for Paris—a slightly melancholy termination to a journey from which so much was hoped. It is all very bad luck for his owner, who had been so fervently hoping that she would be the first woman to win an Epsom Derby. If a French colt is good enough to come here and win a classic race no one can grouse, because it is open competition, but the fact remains that when such a thing happens it takes a good deal of money out of circulation.

CASE OF IRELAND.

One could also say that when an English colt goes to Ireland and wins the Irish Derby it takes money out of Ireland, but the cases are not exactly parallel, because the Irish form is advertised if the locally-trained horses run well against the visitor, and many an owner has been enabled to effect a good sale in consequence. But when a big prize in England is won by a French owner who does not race regularly in this country, like, say, M. de St. Ilary or M. Marcel Boussac, the money is gone beyond recovery.

Apart from the stake money of nearly £10,000, a big sum in bets was won over Rodosto in the Two Thousand Guineas. The French people were prepared to back him up to the hilt for the Derby, and had he won an enormous sum would have gone out of the country.

LOSS TO THE "POOL."

It must be remembered that all the money in racing is more or less in a common pool. It is constantly circulating, but if it goes to France or Patagonia it is gone out of the pool and does not come back, and there is so much the less to play for.

When an English owner finds his account at Weatherby's credited with, say, £10,000 by winning a classic race he is disposed to go to Doncaster again, and spend a proportion of it in yearlings. It goes back into circulation, and more people benefit. The common pool nowadays is small enough in all conscience, so that everyone who is in any way connected with racing cannot afford to see any of it go clean out with the best of grace. This may not be strictly in accordance with what is called the best traditions of sport, but those who pay attention to the laws of self-preservation pay some heed to it.

Rodosto has not so far been formally struck out, but Mr. Dewar scratched Lochiel this morning, and Donoghue will now ride Thrapston for Lord Derby. These disappearances have had the natural reaction in the betting market, and there were a good many changes this morning when the card was called over.

THE WAGERING.

Since I wrote yesterday there has been some rain, but it does not appear that a deluge is imminent. The defection of Rodosto has led to Manitoba becoming a clear favourite, and 6 to 1 was the best offer about him this afternoon, while Hyperion was knocked out to 21 to 2. On the other hand, Hyperion's stable companion, Scarlet Tiger, shortened to 13 to 1.

Scarlet Tiger has been coming on so fast in the last few weeks that he found ready backers to-day. Young Lover shortened to 100 to 9, and King Salmon was backed at 100 to 8, while there was also some money for the Northern colt, Light Sussex.

I doubt, however, whether the prices laid this morning will bear a deal of resemblance to those which will be returned after the race has been run.

There were two important defections from the Coronation Cup this morning, the Aga Khan's pair, Taj Kasra and Firdaussi, which suggests that Dastur will be His Highness's chosen runner. Dastur impressed greatly in his gallop at the week-end, and it suggested that he has come right back to his best form, which was not shown in the City and Suburban.

SELECTIONS.

Brown Jack will be in the field to-morrow for the Rosebery Memorial Handicap, in which he was beaten last year by Lord Nugent, but he gives a lot of weight away, like 2st. to Foxearth and 30lb. to Mandritsara. His Majesty's colt, who has two victories to his credit this season, will be a good deal expected to win, but he may not beat MANDRITSARA, who is my selection.

As the Portrait colt does not run for the Woodcote Stakes, this may be won by one trained by Mr. Cottrill, probably BERMUDA. The Craven Plate may be won by SOME CATCH.

GALTEE MORE.

SUSPICION'S CHANCE.

FOX-EARTH FOR CHOICE IN THE ROSEBERY MEMORIAL.

A FEW years ago the opening day of the Derby meeting at Epsom was a very quiet day, as the card made no special inducement for the ordinary public to go. Recently, however, the programme was strengthened by the inclusion of the Rosebery Memorial Handicap, which is run over the Great Metropolitan course, and, with that popular old favourite, Brown Jack, in the field, the meeting is likely to open on a successful note.

Brown Jack has had only one race this season, and that was over ten furlongs, which was not far enough for him. Last year he was set to carry 10st. 2lb. in this event, and all but beat Lord Nugent, while this time he has to shoulder 5lb. less.

Roi de Paris, who won the Great Metropolitan Stakes here last year, is expected to improve on his Chester Cup running, where he was beaten for speed in the final stages. The third in that event was Mandritsara, who here meets Roi de Paris on slightly worse terms. He is a promising stayer, and is one I shall want to keep on the right side.

Fox-Earth has never run over this distance in public, but he gave a fine display at Newmarket when beating the game Truncheon. He is improving, and is sure to carry His Majesty's colours prominently. Grey Wonder finished third in the Great Metropolitan Stakes after being left at the gate, but he had a moderate lot behind him. Summer Princess is a winner on the course, but her recent form is poor, and I shall take my chance with who will have Mandritsara and Roi de Paris to beat.

Cottrill, the Lambourn trainer, has entered three for the Woodcote Handicap, the first six furlongs two-year-old race of the season, and he will probably run Bermuda. One of the others, Orris colt, dead-heated with The Old Pretender at the last Newmarket meeting, and the latter will run here. I have heard encouraging reports concerning Valona colt, but who is thought to be slightly better than Orris colt over the distance, has the vote.

Duty Calls gelding is fancied for the Juvenile Selling Plate, but I prefer the claims of a good winner from Paradise Lost at the last meeting here.

The other selling race I shall leave to Gordon Richards's mount,

SUSPICION,

a very convincing winner at the Doncaster meeting.

The champion jockey will ride Sun Prince in the Craven Plate, and it was on this horse that he rode one of his best finishes of the season at Chester. He was badly handicapped with a slipped saddle, but even so was able to drive Sun Prince forward to beat Comprehension by a neck. Sun Prince should run well again, but I have more fancy for who was rather unlucky to be beaten by Exaggerated at Haydock Park.

The "course specialist," Steve Donoghue, may have a winning ride in the Norbury Plate, in which his mount is to be

TIPPETS.

Tippets put up a good show in Flange's race at the last Newmarket meeting, and should be better suited by the Epsom track. Of the others, I make a favourable note of Iownaputter, with whom C. Leader should win a good race before the season is over.

NEWMARKET NOTES.

CLASSIC HORSES IN GOOD TRIM SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

NEWMARKET, Monday.

THE morning opened dull and cold, and at the time of writing there are signs of rain. It was only natural, after such a busy day on Saturday, that training operations were quiet this morning. The Stanley House team, which is still under the charge of F. Osgood, kept to the Bury side, and A. Wragg was on his Derby mount, Scarlet Tiger, in a nice mile spin with St. Andrews.

It was not possible to have found any fault with Lord Durham's Derby colt, and that remark also applies to Lord Derby's pair, Hyperion (Weston) and Thrapston, who travelled the same distance at an easy pace. Present conditions underfoot will suit Hyperion admirably.

It was over a mile and a quarter that J. Jarvis sent Interlace with Tartan. There are many who expect Interlace to improve considerably on his Newmarket Stakes running, but, personally, I do not consider him likely to turn the tables on those who finished in front of him in that event.

Naturally, Capt. Boyd-Rochfort allowed Brown Betty, who acquitted herself so well in Saturday's gallop, to take matters easily over five furlongs. She is looking fresh and well, and she will, no doubt, have another good stripped spin before being despatched to Epsom for the Oaks.

Frank Butters was on the Racecourse side and gave his Coronation Cup candidate, Dastur, a half-speed gallop over one mile. He was never better than he is at present, and it will take a smart horse to lower his colours on Thursday. Firdaussi (C. Dickens) and Orpen (Morris) had a good mile spin.

Young Lover, with Robber Chief, came one mile at a rousing pace. The former moved well, as did Felicitation, with Largition, in a similar spin, while Gino stretched out well over a mile at a good pace with Shamsuddin. Each of Butters' Derby candidates has adherents, and I shall be prepared to see all three of them fighting factors.

Sacred Song was Mereworth's mentor in a good-pace gallop over one mile. Mereworth has failed in each of his four races, but it does not shake my confidence in him winning a nice race before long.

Whitaker gave Knight of the Vale and Truncheon a good mile and a quarter spin, and I expect to see the former improve upon his last running when saddled for the Chipstead Handicap.

We shall not be very strongly represented on the opening day at Epsom.

GLADWOOD

has been a consistent performer this season, and should about win the Juvenile Selling Plate.

The Bear, Pinault and

can be made out to hold winning chances in the Ashstead Selling Plate, and I select the last-named.

Although getting on in years Servus still looks well in himself, and will run well for the Rosebery Memorial Plate. Mandritsara will be better suited by this course than when he finished third for the Chester Cup, and will be the danger to

FOX-EARTH*

The latter has done well since he won the Thurlow Handicap here.

Levanter is expected to improve upon his running here in the Woodcote Stakes. Valona colt should also improve upon his running at our last fixture, but my vote goes to who has pleased in her gallops of late.

Trapper had useful form in Ireland, and will run well for the Craven Plate. I prefer Appledram to Craig Nahir, and I do not think we saw the best of Some Catch at Kempton Park. The latter will be the danger to who ran well behind Slieve Donard here, and will be difficult to beat.

Iownaputta, Tippets and

ROCK STAR (next best)

are fancied for the Norbury Plate, and the latter has my vote.

CLAREMORRIS TO-DAY.

EAST GALWAY TO RUN IN THREE MILES 'CHASE.

Train—Broadstone, 7.20 a.m.

THERE will be small fields at Claremorris to-day, but the racing should be fairly interesting. East Galway, the hero of many great winning efforts, is reported to be back to something like his best form, and, if so, should win the Claremorris Plate. Mr. Arnott has a couple of other horses engaged also, and it looks as if the Greenmount stable would capture at least a couple of races. Selections:—

Tote Double on Third and Fifth Races.

Town Hurdle—Matador.

Claremorris Plate—East Galway.
Stewards' Plate—Dope King.

SEA FISHER ATONES.

HEAD VICTORY FOR GLASS BOSS AT MULLINGAR.

WHEN Crockafotha won the Newbrook Plate at Mullingar, yesterday, backers got for the moment a serious set-back; for Overleaf, who finished second, was one of the soundest of favourites. It was generally accepted that there would be an objection, for the first and second finished very close together, and it was a question for the Stewards to decide as to which of the horses was to blame in the bumping which occurred. They decided against Crockafotha, and awarded the race to Overleaf, and the altering of the judge's placings just meant the difference between a losing or winning day to most of those at the meeting.

MISHAP TO BISHOPLAND.

Favourites in several other races came home in front, but Bishopland, who was the best backed in an open market for the Belvedere Plate, met with a mishap during the race, and, breaking a leg, had to be destroyed. This mishap left the path to victory an easy one for Princess of Rheims, who was also a well-supported candidate.

Sea Fisher, who has disappointed on many occasions of late, put up a very strong finish to win the Directors' Plate and beat Ballymoe by a length. It looked odds on the latter scoring when he took second place to the winner a furlong from the winning post, but Mr. J. E. Ryan's horse answered well to the calls made upon him by S. Magee, and won, as stated, in very game style.

Glass Boss, like Sea Fisher, has been a long time waiting to win a race, but he got his chance in the Railway Plate, which, thanks to a very strong piece of finishing riding on the part of M. Wing, he won by a head from Rock Less, who at the distance looked an almost certain winner.

SEVERAL FALLS.

There were several falls during the afternoon, and when Irish Colleen, one of the runners for the Newbrook Plate, collided with the rails, and fell, Mr. P. Sleator, who was riding, sustained concussion, and had to be removed from the course to hospital. In the Clonhugh Steeplechase Proud Phil and Doctor Whitehill were both going well when they came to grief three-quarters of a mile from home, and W. T. O'Grady, who had the mount on Mr. Duggan's horse, got a bad shaking. The race then fell an easy prey to Lady Nugent's Lacatoi, who thus completed a double event for Mr. R. H. Walker as trainer and Mr. F. E. McKeever as rider. Poor Chance, staying on better than any of his four opponents in the Westmeath Steeplechase, readily credited the North of Ireland owner, Mr. A. Willis, with the winning spoils.

The catering was carried out by Mrs. Lawlor and Sons, Naas.

2.30—BELVEDERE PLATE of 40 sovs. Second 5 sovs. A hurdle race. For maidens at entry under all rules. 2 m.

RODOSTO RETURNS HOME.

MANITOBA REMAINS FAVOURITE FOR THE DERBY.

RODOSTO, the ill-fated French candidate for the Derby, left Tattenham Corner Station at 8 o'clock yesterday morning en route to France by way of Folkestone. He was accompanied by his stable companion, Kwasind. He showed no sign of any injury.

The only Derby horse on the course at Epsom yesterday morning was Franz Hals, the Irish candidate, who was given a nice canter of about a mile, and pulled up very fresh and well.

S. DONOGHUE'S MOUNT.

Stephen Donoghue is to have a mount in the race after all. When Lochiel was struck out the veteran horseman, who won the Derby four times in five years, and steered the winners of two substitute Derbys at Newmarket, was left without a mount, but Lord Derby has come to the rescue, and Donoghue will ride Thrapston, who is Lord Derby's second string to Hyperion.

The Hon. George Lambton, who trains Lord Derby's horses, is still confined to bed owing to an injury to his leg, and regrets that there is no hope at all of his seeing the Derby run. He hopes, however, to hear on the wirreless of the success of Hyperion.

The Malton-trained pair, Coroado and Light Sussex, left their training quarters yesterday for Epsom, so that the former, who was reported a doubtful runner, may now be regarded as a certain starter.

BACKING THE OUTSIDER.

There was a remarkable run on Tuppence for the Derby in England yesterday, and people in different parts of the country were anxious to secure the odds of 250 to 1, mentioned at Friday's call-over, about Miss Paget's colt. Few layers would oblige, but offered to lay the horse at yesterday's call-over price, which was just half the odds offered last week.

LONDON BETTING.

GOOD SUPPORT FOR SCARLET TIGER.

HYPERION EASY TO BACK AT CALL-OVER.

There was a good deal of wagering when the card on the Derby was called over at the Victoria Club, London, yesterday, and the disappearance of the French colt, Rodosto, caused several candidates to shorten in price. Manitoba, whose price at the call-over on Friday last was 15 to 2, closed a firm favourite at 6 to 1, Lord Woolavington's colt being supported to win about £8,000 in all.

Hyperion receded in the wagering as compared with his previous quotation, and was very easy to back at 21 to 2, only about £400 being invested on him, but on the other hand there was plenty of money for his stable companion, Scarlet Tiger, who had friends at 1,000 to 70 (thirteen times) before closing at 13 to 1.

Young Lover travelled well, advancing from 100 to 8 to 100 to 9, at which price he was backed to win £10,000; but only small money went on King Salmon at 13 to 1, leaving 100 to 8 the best offer.

Light Sussex opened at 1,000 to 60, which price was taken eleven times, Captain Elsey's charge closing at 100 to 7. Felicitation closed firm at 100 to 6, after being backed to win £5,000 at 18 to 1.

GOOD DAY FOR BATSMEN

ANOTHER WIN FOR YORKSHIRE: HAMMOND'S RECORDS.

KENT collapsed badly before Yorkshire at Leeds yesterday, the county champions winning by an innings and 24 runs. No explanation can be offered, save indifferent batting against excellent bowling, inasmuch as there had been no rain and the wicket remained in good condition. At the beginning of the day the visitors were 270 runs behind with two wickets down in their first innings, which eventually realised a total of only 90 in two and three-quarter hours. They did better in the follow-on, Ashdown batting well, but Bowes was in deadly form, and took 12 wickets for 117 runs in the match. This is Yorkshire's fifth successive win.

W. R. Hammond, the famous Gloucestershire and England cricketer, was concerned in the setting up of two new records during the Gloucestershire v. Leicestershire match at Leicester yesterday. The first record was a personal one, for Hammond's big innings of 206—his first score of a hundred or more against Leicestershire—brought him the distinction of now having to his credit a century against each first-class county. In the second instance Hammond took part in a partnership with E. H. Lyon which realised 336 for the third wicket—the largest stand ever recorded for Gloucestershire.

A magnificent innings by Jack Hobbs was the outstanding feature of the day's cricket at the Oval, the famous batsman on his first appearance of the season scoring a century in his very best style against the West Indies. Hobbs opened the Surrey innings, and from the start played as though he were in full practice. He reached his hundred, out of 217, in three and a half hours, and made his next 50 runs in 45 minutes, and at no time was he ever in difficulties with the bowling.

DANGEROUS BOWLING.

AN ANCIENT "CUTTING."

Mr. John M. Meldon writes from St. Raphael, France:—When looking through my old Irish cricket scrap book, I have come across a letter to The Sportsman, undated, but certainly in the last century, headed "Dangerously Short Bowling," and signed "How's That," London. I cannot remember any notice being taken of this matter at that time, but it may be of interest now. The correspondent gives his reasons for barring dangerously fast bowling as follows:—

"(1) It demands no more skill on the bowler's part than is necessary to bowl straight and fast.

"(2) It is unnecessarily dangerous to the batsman.

"(3) The batsman can do little with it, so leaves it mostly alone, and endeavours rather to defend himself than to score, making the game slow for the onlookers."

He goes on to suggest, with all diffidence, that a line be drawn, short of which it shall not be lawful to pitch a ball under penalty of a "no ball." "How's That" answers the objection of the fresh burden placed upon the umpire, by saying: "This is not a grave matter, because the judging as to the pitch would of necessity devolve on the umpire at the batsman's end who has little else to watch besides stumping. To the objection that the batsman would not have time to take advantage of the umpire's call, he answers "This is in favour of the bowler if anything, but at present I seldom see a batsman being in time to punish a fast "no ball."

I quote this old cutting to show that even as far back as last century, at least one spectator was looking for a way of removing one of the "stale mate" moves in the game, and of getting better value for his money. In those days I was well decorated once or twice a year with rainbows on ribs and legs by Mold, Shaclock, Kortright, et hoc genus, these prismatic contusions being "asked for" by going across to use my body as a second line of defence for balls pitched just outside the off stump, but this method was not in such general use then as now.

Of course most people realise that the Australian experiment necessitating the cultivation of thought-reading by the umpire and of "a smile that is childlike and bland" by the bowler is, to put it mildly, silly. In my humble opinion the application of the l.b.w. law to balls pitched outside the off wicket only, would solve the matter by (1) giving the bowler two more stumps to bowl at; (2) make the game more interesting; (3) placate Australian opinion, and (4) increase the "gate" enormously, which is a thing not to be despised nowadays.

With regard to the question of adding to the umpire's responsibilities, my experience of standing umpire—amateur, of course, and consequently limited—is that it is more difficult to see whether a ball is pitched on the off stump or an inch outside it than to decide whether it would have hit the wicket.

LAWN TENNIS.

FINE VICTORY FOR MISS SCRIVEN.

EXPERTS PLEASED WITH NUNOI.

AUTEUIL, Monday.

Three English victories in the Women's Singles of the French Championships were a feature of to-day's matches. Miss Mary Heeley, ranked as Britain's No. 1 player, defeated Mlle. Valerio (Italy) by 6-2, 6-0; Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall beat Mlle. Barbier (France), 8-6, 6-1; but the most creditable victory of all was the remarkable achievement of Miss Peggy Scriven, one of England's brightest hopes of the year, in beating Fraulein H. Krahwinkle, the German champion, by 2-6, 6-3, 6-3. Fraulein Krahwinkle was the Wimbledon finalist in 1931, and this is the first occasion on which an Englishwoman has beaten her.

R. Nunoi, the champion of Japan, gained a remarkable win over Adrian Quist, the Australian Davis Cup player. When two sets down, he suddenly took command of the play. He directed his passing shots straight down the line, drew the Australian up to the net, and lobbed the ball over his head. For the next two sets Quist was nonplussed. Nunoi took the third and fourth sets for the loss of two games, and went on to lead by three games to none in the fifth set. Quist, throwing in all his reserve strength, levelled at four-all. That effort left him a spent man, and Nunoi ran out with the next two games. Competitors here predict that Nunoi may be one of the sensations at Wimbledon this year.

Another Japanese victory was registered by Jiro Satoh when he beat G. Palmieri, last year's Italian Davis Cup player, by 6-3, 6-4, 6-3. The Italian likes having to handle a full-length ball to the baseline, so Satoh served up short stuff, and, in the end, Palmieri, somewhat annoyed, refused to run for the balls. Rain cut play short early in the afternoon, and the principal results were as follows:—

GOLF.

MISS LATCHFORD OUT.

IRISH LADY CHAMPION BEATEN AT NEWCASTLE.

By Our Golf Correspondent.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

THE overthrow of the champion, Miss Betty Latchford, the playing of the Little Island final over again, a finished display of golf by a former champion, Mrs. Walker, the ruthlessness of Miss Pentony, who surrendered her title last year at Ballybunion, and a nineteenth hole finish between Miss Daisy Ferguson and Miss A. Gardiner, were crowded into a light day's golf here.

The first round consisted of but thirteen matches, Mrs. Madill having a walk over. I did not see the match in which Miss Latchford was beaten by Mrs. Solomons, but those who followed it assured me that the holder was completely out of touch with her putter, and that otherwise she did not play like a champion.

The draw brought together the two stylists of the championship, Mrs. Cuthell and Mrs. J. B. Walker, the former a champion in the days of Miss May Hezlet, and the other the winner at Portmarnock three years back, but Mrs. Cuthell lacked the power of her opponent, and was beaten by five and four by much superior golf.

A HARD STRUGGLE.

Mrs. William Dwyer confirmed the result of the Cork final with Mrs. Clarke, a golfer with a beautiful style, but it was a desperately hard struggle all the way. Mrs. Dwyer was in a rather serious position at the tenth, for she was then two down, having lost it and the ninth, but she then played as she has seldom played, and for the holes in was three better than bogey. It was not until the fifteenth, however, that she got on level terms with a four, another four came to her at the sixteenth, and winning the seventeenth also she entered the second round.

Miss Ferguson had a narrow escape in her match with Miss Gardiner. It was a capital match all the way, but when Miss Gardiner ran her long putt on the home green up to the hole her chances of victory were rosy, for Miss Ferguson had almost as long a one to avert defeat, but she went for the hole boldly and down went the ball. She played the nineteenth hole much the better for a five and the win, and thus pulled the match out of the fire, the Killymoon lady having sliced her drive a bit, and played her fourth hard over the green.

Miss Pentony was most convincing in her match with Mrs. Macan. She won by eight and seven, but she is in a very warm half of the draw. Details:—

BOXING.

NEUSEL DISQUALIFIED.

McCORKINDALE AWARDED FIGHT IN EIGHTH ROUND.

After having had the best of matters for seven rounds, Don McCorkindale, the South African, gained the verdict in the eighth over Walter Neusel, of Germany, who was disqualified for hitting low. He had been warned for this in the previous round.

McCorkindale went in at once with a right to the head. Neusel hung on, but McCorkindale punched him off with a two-handed attack. The South African seemed to be full of power, and though Neusel was defending cleverly McCorkindale was scoring well with lefts to the jaw and rights to the body. McCorkindale was clever at close quarters, and whenever Neusel hung he pummelled him with short-arm jabs.

NEUSEL HANGS ON.

McCORKINDALE'S RECOVERY.

In the third round McCorkindale rushed in and forced Neusel to the ropes. The referee warned them for holding, and then Neusel scored with a perfect right to the jaw that rocked McCorkindale on his heels. Just as the crowd thought the fight was all over the South African shook his head and ran forward, with both hands dealing out punishment to the German's body.

Early in the fourth round, McCorkindale flashed in his left to Neusel's jaw, and the German hung on. Neusel retaliated by punching the South African with both hands to the stomach. McCorkindale was using his left to excellent advantage. Whenever the German straightened up from his fierce body attack there was the left hand of McCorkindale to jolt his jaw.

SOUTH AFRICAN ON TOP.

McCorkindale missed with a right uppercut, and Neusel went in under the South African's guard, only to be foiled by the superb defence of his opponent. Neusel's right eye, which had taken some stiff punishment from McCorkindale's left hand, was bleeding freely at this point. McCorkindale punched Neusel about the body and head with a certainty and a strength that made the German glad enough to hang on and get in a few inocuous punches to the body. McCorkindale was definitely on top in this round.

McCorkindale covered up and lashed his right hand right across to pull up the German in his stride in the sixth. McCorkindale was unmarked, and he was boxing with perfect coolness. Neusel's left was missing badly, and McCorkindale, whose defence was good, scored repeatedly with leads to the face and right jolts to the body. Neusel was concentrating on the body, but McCorkindale fought him off, and his powerful left sent back the German's head time and again.

NEUSEL WARNED.

In round seven Neusel brushed aside an attack by McCorkindale, and scored with a left to the jaw and a right to the body. Neither of the blows, however, hurt the South African, who was in again, only to miss badly with a right uppercut. The referee warned Neusel not to hit low, and upon the men renewing the fighting, McCorkindale took a right to the chin that steadied him. The South African was scoring more often than the German, but his blows seemed to lack power.

In the round that ended the fight, McCorkindale was still aggressive, and twice he caught Neusel with the right. McCorkindale countered cleverly against an onslaught of left-handed punches by the German. Both men were strong at this stage and willing to exchange punches, though McCorkindale was still having the best of matters at close quarters. They were hitting efrcely at close quarters, when Neusel landed two short lefts to the body, and the referee showed no hesitation in disqualifying the German. McCorkindale had dropped to the floor from the body punches, and Neusel, under instructions from the referee, walked to his corner.

ROLLED ON PATH TO PUT OUT FLAMES.

VAIN EFFORT TO SAVE CHILD'S LIFE.

At an inquest in Belfast yesterday on Teresa Kane, aged eleven years, of Christian place, Belfast, who died from shock following severe burns, evidence was given by Frederick Albany that as he was looking through the front door of his house in Whiterock Gardens he saw a child in the passage leading from the door to No. 32 Whiterock Gardens with her clothing in flames. He ran across and caught the child and rolled her on the path, extinguishing the flames. The child was then taken in a car to the hospital.

A verdict of "accidental death" was returned.

DROWNED IN CANAL.

"That death was due to asphyxia, following immersion in water, and that there was no evidence to show how the body entered the water," was the verdict returned at an inquest which was held yesterday by the Acting Coroner (Dr. Oswald Murphy) on the body of William Duffy (41), labourer.

Mr. Christopher Cahill, of 9 Richmond Crescent, said that he heard a noise outside his house, and on going out saw Duffy struggling in the Royal Canal. He dived in, and succeeded in bringing the man ashore, where he applied artificial respiration until the arrival of the Corporation Ambulance.

Dr. Glass, house surgeon at the Mater Hospital, said that Duffy was dead on admission to the hospital.

The jury commended the action of Mr. Cahill.

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, DUNDALK.

CHURCH RE-BUILDING FUND.

At the annual dinner of the past pupils of St. Mary's College, Dundalk, the Very Rev. Father Roe, S.M., Superior, announced that more than £3,000 had been received in response to the appeal for the re-building of the Marist Church in Dundalk, which had been accidentally burned down last year, and that the work of re-building would be started in a few weeks. Their scholastic record during the past year had been the second best in the 55 years since the establishment of the Intermediate Board. A better lot of boys had never been in the college than those of this year.

It was announced that Mr. Patrick O'Connell had been elected President of the Union for the coming year, in succession to Mr. Peter L. Macardle, solicitor. Sympathy was voted to the relatives of the late Mr. A. N. Sheridan, County Louth Registrar, and a former President of the Union.

In aid of the re-building fund a fête and sports were held in the college grounds. More than 3,000 people attended, and the event was a complete success.

SUCCESSFUL APPEAL IN NEWRY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEWRY, Monday.

At Newry to-day before County Court Judge Bates, Thomas McManus and Edward Fearon appealed against an order made by two Resident Magistrates at the Claims Court at Banbridge on 15th July last, ordering them to be imprisoned for two calendar months each, and at the termination of the sentence to enter into bail for twelve months in respect of a charge of unlawful assembly at Loughbrickland on 25th June, 1932.

On the grounds that everything had been proceeding quietly since the Judge remitted the imprisonment, and ordered the defendants to enter into bail of £40 each for two years.

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

ECONOMY ON THE FARM.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Farmers have every reason to economise these times, and we must say on many farms there is great waste. Among the poultry this is often seen in the careless way that food is thrown about, corn, and even soft mash, being fed on dirty ground. Much of this is not eaten, but scratched into the mud. Just now, by having the young birds distributed over the fields in proper coops or small houses, they will pick up most of their food. But when feeding them do not throw the soft food by handfuls on the grass; there should be proper feeding troughs, and what is left when they are done eating should be taken away. The laying birds are not eating so much now, as they prefer the field food, and, therefore, it is not necessary to feed them so well.
